City Attorney Lance Callis acted properly in receiving a fee for legal work done on Granite City's mortgage bond issue, according to an opinion from the Madison County state's attorney's office, read at Tuesday night's Granite City Council meeting.

Five governmental officials, including three Granite City aldermen, charged in a news conference one week ago that Callis' law firm, Callis and Hartman (Larry Hartman is his partner), had received $15,000 in fees for work done on the mortgage bond issue while Callis was under an annual retainer as city attorney.

The officials contended that Callis and his associates receive $32,758 from the city annually to conduct city business and alleged he acted improperly in receiving the additional $15,000 for his work on the bond issue. The allegations, and the method in which they were presented to the news media without notifying Callis or Mayor Paul Schuler, angered the mayor, who called the action "cowardly" and who said any alderman who would do such a thing is "not worth the powder to blow you up."

The letter read Tuesday night was signed by Donald L. Smith, assistant state's attorney and chief of the civil division in that office, who said, "It is our opinion that there is no conflict of statutory provisions as applicable to the receipt of attorney fees from the (bond) underwriter by a city attorney for handling revenue bond issues in Granite City."

Mayor Schuler, openly angry over the allegations, had Callis read the three-page legal opinion to the council and then the mayor signed out the three aldermen who were at last week's news conference, asking each if he or she had any comments on the letter:

"Mrs. (Margaret) Nonn. Do you have any comments? Alderman (Lloyd) Bailey. Would you care to comment?" Bailey said, "Not now, mayor," to which Schuler responded, "Why would now make any difference. You have immunity on the floor now." Bailey still refused to comment.

Schuler then turned to First Ward Alderman Charles Douglas and asked for his comment. Douglas said, "I also talked to the state's attorney's office and the opinion given was on the facts Mr. Callis gave them, not the facts I believe are true. They are still investigating aspects of this case," Douglas said. Schuler then unleashed his feelings, telling the three aldermen, "You picked a cowardly way without the other person being present. An extremely cowardly way. I find it distasteful, discourteous and this has no place with this body."

"If you don't have enough guts to face those you are accusing, then keep your mouth shut. If not, you're not worth the powder to blow you up," the mayor snapped.

Seventh Ward Alderman Paul Ray Bowler said he has no objection to such questions being aired, but contended the way in which it was done "left a lot of questions about the whole council at Madison County State's Attorney Nicholas Byron and the chief of his office's Civil Division, Donald L. Smith, agreed yesterday to undertake further review of a Granite City municipal bond issue legal fee.

The two met with Madison County Board Member Daniel Partney of Granite City at the conclusion of Wednesday's County Board meeting at the courthouse in Edwardsville.

Partney, who spoke at a press conference on the legal fee Jan. 10, presented a tall stack of documents to the county attorneys during yesterday's discussion. They plan to review it to determine whether a bond attorney fee here constitutes a conflict of interest.

No timetable was given, but it is believed they may try to reach a conclusion on the matter by early February. Byron told the Press-Record Wednesday afternoon he plans to expedite legal research.

At the press conference last week, Partney and the street superintendent and three aldermen opposed a $15,000 fee to City Attorney Lance Callis.

They said he should have done the home mortgage bond issue legal work for nothing beyond his $18,000 yearly city attorney salary, or the bond work should have been done by some other lawyer.

Callis defended the fee and emphasized that it came from the bond underwriters rather than from city or mortgage funds.

Partney disagrees, saying that all of the funds constitute city money, controlled by city requisitions, with the mayor verifying that fees are owed and do not duplicate other payments.

Mayor Paul Schuler criticized the three aldermen during Tuesday night's City Council meeting for airing the issue when he and Callis were not present or aware of the press conference.

The mayor urged them to respond but they declined. Later, when Alderman Charles Douglas decided to debate the issue, he could not gain recognition to speak.

Major focus at the City Council meeting was placed on Smith's Jan. 14 letter, responding to Jan. 10 contact by Callis. The letter ruled there was no conflict of interest.

Partney, Byron and Smith said

Wednesday that the legal opinion was based on Callis' summary of the topic, submitted to the state's attorney's office later in the same day that the press conference took place.

The ruling, read twice at the aldermanic meeting this week, did not take into account the documents that Partney had distributed at the press conference, nor the larger accumulation of documents handed to the county legal officers yesterday.

Because the material was available, shedding additional light on the disputed fee, it was agreed to begin an analysis of any pertinent laws, contracts, resolutions, ordinances and related data.

A contention by the five officials,

School bond issue is proposed

Granite City's Board of Education decided Tuesday night to proceed with major school furnace improvements and to consult with citizens on financing roofs and other campus projects through a bond issue election.

Boilers and temperature controls are to be replaced or given major repairs at the Mitchell, Logan, Niedringhaus, Marshall, Frohardt, Nameoki, Emerson, Webster and Johnson elementary schools and Granite City High School South.

The school district's building fund has been in a financial squeeze for several years but officials hope to be able to allocate $842,000 for the estimated $500,000 boiler work and for use in combination with bond proceeds.

The $842,000 includes $510,000 remaining from interest earned on past bond issues, $132,000 budgeted for Illinois Life Safety Code building improvements, and a hoped-for $200,000 from sale of McKinley School.

Auction of McKinley is planned for 10 a.m. Friday, Jan. 25, at that school.

The school system's Citizens' Advisory Council, currently headed by Edwin F. Reiske, is to be asked Jan. 25 at 5:30 p.m. to begin a review of school building needs and submit its recommendations to the school district.

After the school boiler work, Supt. B. J. Davis believes the chief priority involves roof work at the South and North high schools, the school district's warehouses, Frather and Coolidge junior high schools, and the Emerson, Logan, Marshall, Mitchell and Niedringhaus grade schools.

Next in priority are tuckpointing, floors, ceilings, parking lots, driveways, walks, painting and landscaping, Supt. Davis told the board.

He commented, "The board is aware that our present Operations, Building and Maintenance Fund does not provide sufficient revenue to fully maintain our various physical plants. We are levying the maximum permissible in this fund without further voter approval."

"Closing three elementary schools (McKinley, Washington and Stallings) has reduced some of the demand on maintenance revenues."

"But increased costs and the 'snowball' effect of needed maintenance are continuing to place stress on our capabilities to keep up with day-to-day problems, much less allow preventive maintenance."

"Many of our boilers either need major repairs or complete replacement. Unless these needs are met, we will be facing emergency shutdowns and large repair bills, draining the money needed in other areas of building maintenance."

"Many roof replacements, tuckpointing, new floors and ceilings, sidewalks and drives are also vital if we are to continue to insure that pupils

This morning's strike ended about 9:30 a.m. today when union representatives met with Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer and State's Attorney Nicholas G. Byron and agreed to a

Most of the bi-state air pollution from Missouri

Industry can no longer be considered the chief polluter of air in the metropolitan area, a researcher said yesterday.

He also said the Missouri part of this region causes more air pollution than the Illinois portion.

Charles A. Thornton, an associate professor in the department of earth sciences, geography and planning at SIUE, has concluded that current air quality in the Madison-St. Clair counties area is more a consequence of emissions resulting from urban living and the mobility of the population than from industrial emissions.

"Since the turn of the century, it has been commonly thought that industry

Crackdown on pumps at GC service stations

Several discrepancies at gasoline pumps of service stations in Granite City have been found by the city inspection department. Corrections have been made.

The department is responsible for the checking of all the pumps in the city twice each year for accuracy.

Five gallons of gasoline are taken from each pump, using the pump's own retail gauge, and then the actual amount of gasoline pumped is determined.

State requirements set by the Illinois Department of Agriculture's division of weights and measures are used for the tests. The test measures the amount of cubic inches of gasoline pumped, with a range of plus or minus five cubic inches set as the acceptable tolerance. One cubic inch equals 1.8 ounces of fluid.

Several pumps in the city were found not falling within this acceptable range. One pump dispensing regular gasoline at the Jet, Flight Service Station, Nameoki and Johnson roads, which sells Penna gasoline, was alleged to be off a half gallon for every five gallons tallied by the pump, a difference of 10 percent on each sale.

At the same station, a premium pump was off 27 cubic inches or approximately a quart and a half for each five gallons registered, it was alleged.

Not all of the errors noted by the inspection department were in favor of the stations.

A pump at the Granite City Car Wash, 3653 Nameoki Road, behind K-Mart, was pumping 24 cubic inches too much for each five gallons registered, amounting to about 43 ounces too much.

Another station which had problems in the amount being pumped was Toeniskoetter's Service, 2100 Johnson Road, which sells Mobil gasoline.

One pump was measured as pumping 17 cubic inches or approximately 31 ounces more than the five gallons registered on the pump. Another pump had an opposite error of 22 ounces for each five gallons registered on the pump, it was alleged.

All of the mentioned pumps were tested on Friday, Jan. 11, and those found to be creating a potential problem for customers were shut down by the inspection department and sealed at the time of testing.

A report will be filed with the state department of weights and measures concerning two of the pumps.

A report is filed after a pump is found in error twice in succession. The pump in question has since been recalibrated and put back into use.

The pump at another station was also closed down on Friday, but the pump

Second areawide cleanup drive scheduled April 12

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

The Community Pride Committee of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce is again planning a major cleanup drive.

Lacey Randolph is chairman of the committee and Paul Mihalich is chairman of the drive scheduled for Saturday, April 12.

Last year, with numerous groups participating, 32 tons of trash were picked up along highways leading into the Quad-Cities.

The trash was hauled in trucks donated by the State of Illinois and Granite City.

According to Chairman Mihalich, this year the drive committee is seeking to enlist the aid of 1,500 volunteers.

Civic, religious, fraternal, labor and youth groups are being invited to participate.

Interested groups are to contact the Chamber office.

A popular part of the event for the young and old alike is the refreshments furnished by the local McDonald's Restaurant and the Pepsi-Cola Co.

A meeting was held Thursday at McDonald's to begin making the preliminary plans.

Among those attending were: Jacques Abrams from American Steel, Gayle Wolfskill and Myra Parrish of the River Bluffs Girl Scout Council, Drew Karandjeff of the Granite City Bank, Jim Livingston from the Chamber of Commerce, Randall Irwin of Irwin Funeral Chapel, Walter Milton of Pepsi-Cola Alton Bottling Co., Jim Steele, area supervisor for McDonald's, David Eads, marketing manager for McDonald's.

Kieffer heads Explorers of Post 10-4

New officers for Explorer Post 10-4 were announced today by W. F. "Mick" Strange, coordinator and committee chairman.

President Jason Kieffer, First Vice-President John Bargiel, Second Vice-President Mike Schaffner, Secretary David Mooshegian, Treasurer Lonnie Smith and Senior Squad Leader Ronnie Graywaz.

Willie Smith and John Lake are squad leaders.

The selection was made solely on the basis of scores in written tests on knowledge of the Madison police department and the Explorer program locally, regionally and nationally.

Explorers seeking offices within the post had to appear before a panel of three men: Madison Police Officers William Weidner and Gary Marsala, and Strange.

The oral interview covered a variety of subjects, including attitudes on various topics and some technical police situation questions.

The Explorers will be touring the new Madison County jail and the old one on Friday afternoon.

Lieutenant Jack Fikes, superintendent of the jail, spoke to the Explorers last week, outlining procedures a person goes through when being incarcerated.

Explorer Post 10-4 is sponsored by Madison Police Unit 110 and meets each second and fourth Wednesday evening at the Madison police department.

SCOUT PAPER DRIVE
Boy Scout Troop 13 will hold a paper drive Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 26 and 27. Persons are being asked to bring papers to the St. Elizabeth Church parking lot, Pontoon and Johnson Roads, anytime between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. For more information they may call 877-6617.

Fairmont City eyes Quad-City area land for annexation

Fairmont City may become a closer neighbor to the Quad-City area than it currently is, and that thought has caused concern among some local officials.

Tuesday night, Fairmont City officials voted to have their village attorney study the feasibility of expanding into portions of Nameoki Township.

Mayor John Wyrostek recently held a special meeting of the village board at which he brought up the possibility that annexations may be possible which could quadruple the size of the village.

Although the precise boundaries of the proposed annexation still are being discussed, the 4,000 or more acres under consideration for annexation come as close to Granite City as the intersection of Route 111 and State Aid 35, according to Fairmont City Trustee Ronnie Biggs.

That, officials here say, has them worried. A spokesman for the Long Lake Fire Protection District and fire department said he is concerned that a massive annexation by Fairmont City could include Lakeside Airport and the Do-It-Yourself Home Improvement Center, thus reducing the tax base of the fire district.

Taxes also could be lost by Nameoki Township, officials here fear. Biggs said Fairmont City officials are considering annexing along Route 40 to the Venture and Kroger complex just east of Route 111.

Then there is "a far-fetched possibility" the annexation would continue along the east side of Route 111 into the Quad-City area, Biggs said.

Also under study, he indicated, is the possibility of annexing along Route 203 north to the Cloverleaf and Eagle Park Acres areas south of Madison. "That's possible, but it is just something we are looking into," he added.

Hiring of Mike Jett, a consultant for village and municipal growth who represents Pontoon Beach and other areas, is being considered by Fairmont City, to help achieve orderly growth and add to the tax base through annexations, Biggs said.

At Tuesday night's meeting, the board decided not to hire Jett and his associates until the village attorney has more time to study the feasibility of investing money in such planning.

Jett told one reporter he has met with Fairmont City officials and told them any annexations they undertake should be with the approval of the people whose property is to be annexed. A plan of the magnitude being considered by Fairmont City could take a year or more to complete, he warned.

Jett said annexing would improve Fairmont City's income by adding to its motor fuel tax allocation, revenue sharing, sales taxes and real estate taxes.

Offsetting that are the increased expenses from more roads to maintain more area for village police to patrol and more expenses to provide needed services to the additional village residents, he said.

Attempts to annex vast amounts of land rapidly would undoubtedly meet with opposition. Long Lake fire officials already have said they will fight any erosion of their tax base and about 15 persons residing near Fairmont City indicated at the special meeting that they oppose being annexed.

Biggs concluded, "Our main objective here is to take in the Venture and Kroger stores. Their only police protection is from the Madison County sheriff's office and our officers often go in there to help out."

"Extending the annexation beyond that is just a far-fetched possibility. I understand there is some opposition from fire departments and others, and we do not want to take anything away from them. We just want to provide more police protection," he said.

Girl Scouts to observe 68th anniversary week

By DONNA HARTWICK of the Press-Record

During the week of March 9-15, Girl Scouts will be celebrating the 68th anniversary of the Girl Scout movement in the United States.

This year's theme is "Girl Scouting: Where the Future Begins."

This year also is the 18th anniversary of the River Bluffs Girl Scout Council, which serves scouts in the Quad-City area as well as those in surrounding counties.

According to the council office there are 2,100 adult volunteers and 13,000 girls active in scouting programs in the council.

Girl Scout Sunday scheduled for March 9 will be the initial observance for three million Girl Scouts across the country. They will be celebrating the event by attending church in their uniforms along with other troop members at designated churches or at services in their own places of worship.

Each troop is being encouraged to plan its own activities marking the anniversary week, such as working on window displays and exhibits in business districts, schools or other public buildings, or making posters with the new Girl Scout logo and the theme for the observance.

Troops also may declare a uniform day, hold a family potluck dinner, provide troop entertainment or plan a city-wide service project.

The organization, which started with only 18 members in 1912, now numbers more than three million girls and adults working together to improve the quality of life, now and in the future, according to the River Bluffs Council.

The council added, "Since 1912 more than 42 million girls and women have gone on to important roles in the home, the community, and the world. Girl Scouting is dedicated to the principles of preparing girls and women for the future, and helping them achieve their fullest potential."

"To be a Girl Scout does not mean just another activity sandwiched in between school and clubs for the girls of the community. Active membership in the Girl Scout organization can be a springboard to significant involvement with people, with the community, and with the world of the future."

"Girl Scouting's contemporary program is based on a foundation of proven values and is designed to help a girl make intelligent choices for herself, her career and her future. What her future can be is up to her: she can be an astronaut, a plumber, a dockworker, a home manager. Anything is possible."

"Strengthened by the program itself, Girl Scouting brings to each girl an awareness of her own personal worth and a chance to grow as an individual," the council noted.

Officers of the River Bluffs Council said, "We congratulate the Girl Scouts of our community on this occasion and wish them well. Their contributions, past and future, to the well-being of this community are sincerely appreciated."

"We urge all to join with our local Girl Scouts in this celebration. Girl Scouting works to achieve a future as bright as the faces of the girls themselves. Truly, Girl Scouting is where the future begins."

Space, ethnic, computer, art studies and books captivate gifted youngsters

The after-school program, nicknamed "Strike It Rich," is providing a wide range of information for students.

Mrs. Merna M. Musters, Granite City gifted program coordinator, reports that "although the 'Strike It Rich' information is being disseminated through our new gifted student newsletter, 'Gift Rap,' the activities are not to exclude those students who have particular interest and/or talent in the respective activity, but may not have been identified as gifted under our current district criteria."

"Staff members are being encouraged to give the information to such exceptional students."

"The volunteer leaders are not being paid for their services, but participating students are required to pay for materials, where applicable."

"Transportation to the various locations where activities are being held is the sole responsibility of the individual parents," she said.

The current gifted activity schedule is summarized below, listing the title of the program, the volunteer leader, the school location, the school location, the Man, 18, faces cannabis charge

William D. Fancher, 18, of 2460 Sheridan Ave., was charged with possession of cannabis and contributing to the delinquency of a minor at 1:10 a.m. Wednesday.

At 28th and State streets, a patrolling officer approached a vehicle parked in front of Niedringhaus School. The auto pulled into the school playground and when Fancher was asked for identification he allegedly showed a driver's license issued to a 20-year-old man.

While questioning the driver, an officer at the scene alleged noting a large bulge in a coat pocket. It was found to be a plastic bag, containing what appeared to be cannabis. Fancher allegedly reported finding a wallet in the park with the driver's license initially shown to officers.

At police headquarters, a second plastic bag allegedly was found in the lining of a jacket, containing 11 hand-rolled cigarettes.

Kevin R. McGee, 17, of 2604 E. 24th St., was charged with a curfew violation.

large. It made everyone ask what's going on."

Bowler said news reports quoted individuals as saying such payments have been going on since about 1950. "A lot of reputable men have been attorneys in that period and there may be some irreparable damage done to some good men in this community if this is not true," Bowler said.

He added, "Whatever way this is resolved, I think the other one should apologize."

Schuler next entertained a motion to put the full text of the state's attorney's office opinion into the minutes of the meeting.

He asked City Clerk Robert W. Stevens to read the three-page legal opinion a second time, "so the aldermen know what they are voting to put in the minutes," Stevens complied. The motion then was approved unanimously.

Stevens then began to read various communications for the council and was interrupted by Alderman Douglas, who raised his hand and asked to be recognized. Mayor Schuler ignored him.

Douglas interrupted Stevens again, yelling, "Mr. Mayor, may I have recognition please?" Schuler banged his gavel and demanded quiet. He then asked Stevens to proceed.

A third time Douglas requested recognition and Schuler again banged the gavel. After the meeting, Douglas requested that reporters ask the question in print why he was not recognized when he yelled from his council seat.

Another city official answered the question quietly, stating, "Under Robert's Rules of Order, you must RISE to be recognized."

New evidence

quoting Illinois statutes, is that "the city attorney shall be the legal advisor of the city and shall render advice on all legal actions affecting the city, whenever requested to do so."

"It shall be the duty of the city attorney to draft, supervise the phrasing of any contract, lease or other document or instrument to which the city may be a party, and—upon request by the mayor or council—to draft ordinances or resolutions covering any subjects within the power of the city."

"The council also may retain or authorize the employment of other counsel to give advice or render service to the city," they say in further reference to the statutes.

They cite numerous mentions in documents related to the mortgage bond issue of the city's role as issuer of the bonds.

The five describe the sale and service agreement, trust indenture, purchase contract, indemnity letters and placement memorandum all as "city documents" whose implementation is guided and controlled by the city.

Quoting from the bond issue's "certificate and request," they say it was certified that "no member of the council and no officer or official of the issuer has any pecuniary interest, directly or indirectly, in any contract, employment, mortgage loan, lease, purchase or sale made or to be made in connection with the transaction contemplated by the instruments referred to."

In Smith's Jan. 14 letter, he discusses "prohibited contracts in which an appointed official may have an interest." Smith adds that "this statutory provision...applies only to contracts or the performance of work in which an officer may be called upon to act or vote."

"The Smith points out that a city attorney has 'no right to vote' but Smith does not refer specifically to any ramifications of an attorney being called upon to 'act.' Partney noted yesterday.

Documents that have been accumulated allege instances in which Callis took actions as city attorney regarding the mortgage bond issue, as well as instances in which he took actions in fulfillment of the $15,000 legal work contract.

Callis rejects the line of reasoning that a conflict or duplication could exist. He says there have been many precedents over a long period of years in which there was extra pay for attorneys working on a part-time basis, when the scope of a particular project went beyond the normal workload that was being remunerated by salary. All parties agree that there has been a trend away from percentage fee schedules and toward billings linked to the amount of legal research and other work actually performed.

October 1979 records show initial reference to a fee schedule that would have totaled $55,750, and then authorization for a $15,000 payment to the Lance Callis-Larry Hartman law firm.

ping mechanism has been replaced and the pump was put back into service Wednesday.

If pumps are found to be dispensing more than the proper amount, the owner or manager is notified.

Testing of other pumps in the city resumed Wednesday.

The manager of Jet Flight Service was unavailable for comment, but a spokesman for the service station said that there had been no indication the pumps were not working properly. He said he had heard no complaints from any customers.

The spokesman said he thinks the pumps were "really not that much off."

Demo headquarters in GC

The Democratic headquarters for the upcoming primary campaign will be in Granite City, rather than the previously announced sight in Wood River, Christ Costoff, chairman of the Madison County Democratic Central Committee, announced this morning.

He said space has been donated in the mini-mall east of the K-Mart store on Nameoki Road and the new headquarters will open Monday morning.

Costoff credited a Press-Record article last week with alerting local realtors that the building is needed.

That article quoted Costoff as saying he was unable to find a building in Granite City which would be donated to the party for the campaign, so he would have to put the party headquarters in a building which had been donated in Wood River. It had been the first time in many years that the headquarters had been anywhere except Granite City.

"As soon as that story appeared, things began happening and soon we had a building in Granite City," Woodrow "Woody" Moat, president of the Granite City Democratic Club, commented.

Valencia stabbed today

Granite City police have a 42-year-old Ohio Avenue man in custody who allegedly has admitted stabbing Valencia during a scuffle.

Patrolman Douglas Law was the parking lot of the drive-in, writing a traffic ticket, when he received a dispatch of a fight inside. As he walked toward the building, the suspect in the stabbing walked out the door, went around the corner of the building and threw something south, toward the Granite City Steel Parking lot.

Law entered the building and discovered that Valencia had been stabbed. He summoned an ambulance and tried to aid Valencia. The suspect returned to the inside of the restaurant and was questioned on his hands and shirt. Other police units arrived and everyone who had been in the building was questioned.

Several witnesses told police a scuffle broke out inside the restaurant and the older man, "Leave me alone, I don't want to hurt you."

The suspect was taken to the police station and allegedly told police Valencia jumped him and was questioning the man's knife off for self defense.

Valencia suffered two stab wounds to his abdomen and one to his right arm and was taken by a Granite City ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center where he allegedly resisted doctors and tried to walk out.

Police said he fell down, so authorities returned him to the emergency room. He was admitted and was listed in "guarded condition," authorities said.

No charges have been filed against the 42-year-old man, pending interviews with him today and possible presentation of the case to the Madison County state's attorney's office.

ANCIENT DATA. Barbara J. Lawrence, associate professor of English language and literature at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, examines an ancient document as part of her genealogical research. She is writing a series of articles based on the papers of the Flaggs, a family that settled in the local area in 1817.

Roots search turning professor into sleuth

By M. ALAN STERN

Although Barbara J. Lawrence doesn't look one bit like Jim Rockford or Sam Spade, she is a detective.

Professor Lawrence, who teaches English at SIUE, has spent a great deal of her own time and money investigating her family history. Now her hobby is more than a hobby.

She has received a preliminary $500 grant from the Illinois Humanities Council to investigate the history of the Flaggs, a family that first arrived in the Madison-St. Clair counties area in 1817.

Illinois pioneer Gershom Flagg kept a journal that reflects on matters great and small in 19th Century America. Basing her work on his journal, Prof. Lawrence intends to write a series of articles about the Flaggs and the world of the 1800s.

There is much of the sleuth in the professor. One of her academic specialties is Middle English, with its intriguing differences from modern language.

She has also taught a course in detective fiction. A Raymond Chandler novel occupies a prominent spot on her crowded bookshelf.

Being a detective, she admits, helps a great deal when searching for one's antecedents. Her initiation into the "roots" game began a year ago when her curiosity led her to a 106-year-old woman who was her great-grandfather's niece.

The niece directed her to a small cemetery in Johnson County in Southern Illinois. There, surrounded by ancient headstones barely younger than the surrounding oak trees, she searched for the grave of a great-grandfather that would help her trace her family back to Revolutionary times.

At first she was alone in the desolate graveyard. Then another car pulled into the cemetery and she engaged the driver in conversation. He turned out to be one of her relatives — albeit a distant one.

With her relative's assistance, she managed to trace her lineage back to several officers in the Continental Army during the Revolution.

One officer had a sister who became a temperance leader and "was upstairs praying" while her less virtuous relatives were downstairs drunkenly celebrating the latest Revolutionary victory.

The lucky coincidence of meeting an unknown relative is the kind of good fortune that makes it all worthwhile for Prof. Lawrence.

"It can be exciting," she explains. "You wonder: Where will I find the next link in the chain?"

"I had traced most of my family back to Maryland — at least that's the state they all thought was their birthplace. But I was coming through county courthouse records in Maryland and coming up blank."

"Then my cousin Charles, who lives in Virginia, plucked the records out of a Virginia courthouse. He saved me a lot of extra legwork," she remembered.

How would a neophyte genealogist begin looking for family records?

"The 1880 census is a good place to start," she said. "The year 1890 presents a problem, though, because the records for that year were burned in a Washington fire."

The professor is being assisted in her work on the Flagg Papers by Betty H. Richardson, English department chairman, and Associate Professor Marvin A. Solomon, social science librarian at SIUE.

"The more I get into it, the more interesting it gets," she said.

"Gershom Flagg wrote about the anti-slavery movement and the California gold rush. Willard, his son, drew up a township plan for the City of Edwardsville."

"There's enough in those papers to keep me busy for a long time," she smiled.

Psychologist-hypnotist here

Dr. Max Zebelman, a psychologist and widely known clinical hypnotist, will speak at 7:15 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21, in the banquet room at Ravenell's Restaurant, American Village Shopping Center.

The program is being sponsored by the Elite Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, Affiliate 33, and will be open to the public.

A $2 admission fee will be charged.

Dr. Zebelman's presentation, entitled "Self Mastery Through Self Hypnosis," will be part of the affiliate's January dinner meeting.

The public session at 7:15 will follow the dinner and a brief meeting.

For the last 30 years, Dr. Zebelman has used hypnosis in the treatment of patients.

He has taught psychology at Meramec Community College in Kirkwood, Mo., for the past 10 years and also is in private practice in Chesterfield, Mo.

In 1975, Dr. Zebelman was told by neurosurgeons to "go home, make out your will and prepare to die" when a grapefruit-size inoperable tumor was discovered growing in his brain.

The neurosurgeons said he had only three months to live as the cyst, a mass of tissue cutting off circulation to his brain, could not be surgically removed.

Dr. Zebelman still has the tumor, which causes hearing problems, dizzy spells, split vision and a sensation Zebelman describes as "explosions going off in my brain."

But he is still alive and credits his survival to self-hypnosis techniques and his wife's refusal to let him give in.

Today, almost five years and drug abuse.

Dr. Zebelman also is in the process of writing a book, "My Times and Your Life," detailing his personal experiences with hypnosis and how hypnosis can benefit others.

Julie Marzluft and Sheila Morgan of Affiliate 33, who arranged Dr. Zebelman's appearance here, said it was decided to invite the public due to local interest in this subject.

Gains during '70s by harness racing

By JOHN SCULLY

Since everyone else is doing a review of the past decade, it may be appropriate at this time to look back at some of the happenings in both harness racing and thoroughbred racing in the 1970s. This week we'll concentrate on harness activities.

A certain phrase goes, "You've come a long way baby." The same, too, could be said about harness racing at Fairmount Park.

In 1971, the average attendance was 3,347, with a nightly handle of $219,078.

During the 20-night meeting in December 1979, the average attendance was 3,547, an increase of 200 per night.

What is unbelievable is that the average handle is now $273,497, up over $150,000 per night.

There are many reasons for the increase. Inflation plays a small part, but the biggest factor is that the racing fan is finding out that the harness horse is as reliable, and maybe more so, compared to the thoroughbred.

Standardbreds seem to hold their form longer than a thoroughbred, besides the fact that it is somewhat easier to handicap a race in which all the horses have been racing exclusively at one distance.

Harness racing is generally conducted at a distance of one mile, while thoroughbreds are constantly changing distances.

Back in '71, the leading driver was Steve Desomer, with Ray Parker second, Mike Downs third and Doug Holford fourth. That was the last year that Desomer raced here, as he has since gone on to bigger and better things, being one of the leading drivers in Northern California.

Ray Parker is still racing at Fairmount Park, with one of the better stables. Mike Downs is now deceased, while Doug Holford is racing locally, but not with as much success as he has known in the past.

In the '70s, Holford has had such good ones as Direct Dottie, Overall Girl and Sooner Race. Both Direct Dottie and Overall Girl have been bred, while Sooner Race still campaigns for Holford, no longer as an invitational horse but as a bottom priced claimer.

Direct Dottie was the first horse to break the two-minute mile in Southern Illinois, as she paced the mile in 1:59.4 at Cahokia Downs.

From 1973 through 1977, Keith Linton dominated the drivers' standings, not only locally but also nationally, as he won several Universal Drivers Ratings awards.

Linton never had a top horse, but he did have consistency. When he had a horse on the track, you knew the horse was in top shape.

What is strange is that Linton only led the standings once at Fairmount Park, that being 1974 at the meet held at Cahokia Downs. Racing was conducted at Cahokia Downs in 1974-75 while the grandstand at Fairmount Park, which was destroyed by fire, was being rebuilt.

Some of the leading drivers are as follows: Dave Fagan 1973, Linton '74, Tom Terlick '75, Mike Arnold '76, Vern Bontrager '77, Perry Smith '78 and William Fahy in '79.

Looking back on the past decade, most of the best horses were mares: Direct Dottie, Dale's Star, Zeke Oaks, Leather Boy, Charlie Rush In, who died tragically in a barn fire, plus Triple Shot and the current top colt, Bogene.

Top male horses were Doctor Mahrud, Edgewood Volight, Larry Adios, Zeke Oaks, Leather Boy, Charlie Rush In, who died tragically in a barn fire, plus Triple Shot and the current top colt, Bogene.

The track record holders for the pace and trot had only fleeting moments of glory. Brooks K Star, with Glen Johnson in the sulky, set the track mark on the final night of the season, April 6, 1977, when he stepped the mile in 1:58.4. At the time, he was not considered one of the best drivers, but he was in top form and the track has never been faster.

Brooks K Star raced only nine times in 1977 and did not race at all in 1978.

Nevele Frank also was in peak condition and set the trot record one day before the pace record fell. Nevele Frank raced in cheap claimers until he changed trainers in 1977 and he raced well through 1977 and 1978.

Currently, he is a cut or two away from being the horse that set the record back in 1977.

Many fine trotters and pacers have raced at Fairmount Park over the past decade. However, it appears that even better horses and drivers will be lured to the Collinsville oval in the next decade, as purses are on the increase.

The racing fan should be encouraged from the various signs this year, that things will even be bigger and better in the '80s.

Frohardt students fight for eagles

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

During the 1976 Bicentennial Year, Illinois school children contributed money to buy refuge areas for disappearing birds.

However, proposed construction of a motel near the Oak Valley Eagle Refuge near Hampton, Ill., in Rock Island County. Frohardt pupils in Granite City hope to do something about the threat.

The $55,000 raised by Illinois school children and other monies contributed by groups would allow for the purchase of 110.5 acres.

One 13-acre tract could not be acquired. The problem is that the motel would be built within 100 meters of a major eagle nesting area and the birds are extremely susceptible to human intrusion.

Endangered species experts have said the motel development would negate the entire project.

With the approval of the Illinois Office of Education, school children have been encouraged to write the Rock Island County Board in an attempt to block the building of the motel.

Students in Mrs. Estelle Massie's fourth grade language arts class this month wrote and presented talks to other classes, made and displayed posters in the school, wrote and sent letters to the board along with over 300 signatures of children, manned a signature table and assisted other groups in protesting the motel construction.

Illinois has the largest number of eagles of any state in the nation except Alaska, with 1,400 eagles counted in Illinois last year.

Students helping to organize and working in the petition drive were Jim Johannpeter, Kim Coad, Euan Kyung Lee, Scott Moore, Carrie Hametula, Suzanne Houston, Eric Kuenker, Mike McConnell, Todd Smallie, Jim Modin, Amy Staikoff, Becky Whitehead, Barbara McLean, Davis Monphard, Bobby Michaels, John Lustluter, Holly Lerch, Joe Hinnen, Dennis Winn, Shari Stephens, Larry Tanksley, Derwin Lengyel, Shannon Reynolds and Becky Whitehead.

A decision on the motel construction is expected to be made soon by the Rock Island County officials.

The checks were accepted from an individual for gasoline purchases or cash between Dec. 24 and Jan. 3. Craddock said he had talked to the man and had been promised payment, but had not seen him since.

MAN ATTACHED BY TWO Eddie Holt, 49, of 1318 Rhodes St., Madison, was admitted at 1:40 a.m. Tuesday to St. Elizabeth Medical Center with pain in his left leg and his nose. He was getting out of his auto in the 1400 block of Second street, Madison, when he was jumped and beaten by two men.

Seek action on soybean sales

The American Soybean Association (ASA), based in St. Louis, demanded Thursday that the U.S. Department of Agriculture take immediate action to provide soybean growers and consumers relief from the Soviet embargo "without the need for costly soybean reserves or other government subsidies."

In a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, the ASA recommended implementation of six programs to provide short and long-term relief from the effects of the embargo which the ASA said could save U.S. taxpayers $15 million to $20 million for soybeans alone.

"ASA has consistently supported federal policies which allow farmers to receive their income from the marketplace rather than from federal subsidies," President Allan Aves said in the telegram.

"We still oppose a federally-financed soybean reserve program. This embargo, however, has created a severe economic hardship on soybean growers and we therefore request immediate government action."

1. Increase by at least $200 million in the current fiscal year Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) export credits to finance exports of soybean products to developing nations.

2. Increase Food for Peace funding to allow increased export of soybean products to needy people in developing nations.

3. Implement intermediate-term credit provisions of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 to allow 3 to 10 year loans to foreign customers so they can construct processing and storage facilities for agricultural commodities.

4. Make CCC export credits available to the People's Republic of China so soybean exports to that nation can be maximized.

5. Request Congress to grant USDA authority to establish a $5 billion revolving fund for CCC export credits.

6. Increase soybean market development funding through USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service by $1 million this year, $2 million in 1981 and $3 million in 1982 to help soybean growers develop new or expanded markets to replace the lost Soviet market. During the current fiscal year, FAS investment in soybean market development activities totaled $2.8 million.

Burglar twists knobs to enter

An inventory is being taken to determine what items are missing in a burglary reported at 4:15 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Becky Schaffer, 2213 Cardinal Ave.

A tenant, who occupies a basement apartment at the residence, informed police that a bedroom and closet in the upstairs area of the house had been ransacked and his own quarters had been entered.

Entry into the house was gained by twisting a rear door knob with pliers, or other tools. The apartment door was opened in the same manner.

SMASH CAR WINDOWS. The windshield, rear window and two side windows were smashed by vandals on a 1970 sedan owned by Joan Jackson, 2408 Kirkpatrick Homes, it was reported at 7:40 a.m. Tuesday. Damage to the vehicle, which was parked in the 2200 block of the housing complex, was estimated at $300.

Contact with elected officials being urged

Schnuck Markets, Inc., the League of Women Voters of Metropolitan St. Louis and the Regional Commerce and Growth Association are co-sponsoring a new public service program to encourage area citizens to "participate in their government" by contacting their elected representatives.

The program, entitled "America...St. Louis Cares," urges voters to voice their opinions by writing letters to their elected officials.

To make it more convenient for citizens to contact their representatives, Schnucks is making the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all elected national level representatives for the Missouri and Illinois metropolitan area readily available through the media and at all area Schnucks supermarkets.

In addition, envelopes imprinted with the "America...St. Louis Cares" name and logo will be provided at all Schnucks supermarkets for anyone who wishes to write to elected officials.

To remind citizens of the importance of reaching their representatives, Schnucks employees will be wearing "America...St. Louis Cares" buttons during the program.

Don Schnuck, president of Schnuck Markets, Inc., has defined the purpose of the program: "Our objective is to channel the reservoir of public opinion into constructive action within the bounds of our political system."

"We wish to remind citizens that their collective voice can make a difference in the direction America takes in the future."

"We want to stimulate the citizens of our area to let their representatives know what is on their mind."

The League of Women Voters has a long record of urging people to exercise their right as citizens by taking part in government and by making informed decisions on election days.

Pat Rich, president of the League of Women Voters of Metropolitan St. Louis, commented, "For 40 years the League of Women Voters has worked to promote citizen participation in government."

"We hope that citizens will take this opportunity to become informed about the issues and to express their views, both positive and negative. We also encourage everyone who is registered to vote to register now, so that they can vote in this year's election."

Comment to the development of the St. Louis metropolitan area prompted the Regional Commerce and Growth Association to co-sponsor the "America...St. Louis Cares" program.

James M. O'Flynn, president of RCGA, feels that the program coincides with its organization's purpose:

"The RCGA's new five-year plan is to encourage not only economic development of the St. Louis region but also to encourage further growth and development of our pride in the community."

"It is clearly evident in the 'America...St. Louis Cares' program that citizens here are concerned with both local and national government and how it influences our community."

"Creating closer ties between citizens and their elected representatives will make our area an even better community."

Kidney awareness award to Granite City Moose

The Loyal Order of Moose, District 10, Granite City, has been named a 1979 recipient of the public service award of the National Kidney Foundation.

The order received the award for aiding in the Foundation's efforts to increase the public's awareness of kidney disease and its related problems. Since 1971, members of the Loyal Order of Moose have been strong supporters of programs of the Kidney Foundation of Eastern Missouri and Metro-East, and have given extensive support to the Foundation's fund raising efforts.

The National Kidney Foundation is the major health agency seeking the total answer to diseases of the kidney—prevention, treatment and cure.

"The Foundation's many-faceted programs bring help and hope to millions of people suffering from kidney and urinary tract diseases through research, patient and community services, professional education and public information," a spokesman said.

Insects most numerous

"Insects are the most numerous creatures on earth," says federal entomologist Lloyd Knutson. "So far, scientists have identified about a million species, perhaps two-tenths of the total number of species. Within many species there are a number of almost totally different forms, which increases the number several times."

MARIE SCHWALBE

First Assembly week of prayer

Marie Schwalbe, an ordained minister of the Assemblies of God, will be the featured speaker for the Week of Prayer and Fasting from Jan. 20-26 at First Assembly of God Church, 24th Street and Grand Avenue, according to the Rev. Dale Edwards.

Mrs. Schwalbe, formerly of Granite City, has served as a pastor, evangelist, seminar and conference speaker. She will be sharing from her rich knowledge of the Bible in each service, Rev. Edwards added.

Services are scheduled for 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sunday, followed by a 10:30 a.m. service Tuesday, and nightly services at 7 p.m. Wednesday through Friday.

Rev. Edwards, pastor of First Assembly, invites everyone in the community to attend.

Disco skate party at ice rink Saturday

A disco skate party for area teenagers will be sponsored Saturday night by the Granite City Park District at the Wilson Park, ice rink.

The party will take place from 9:45 to 11:45, after the regular evening skating session has concluded.

Dee Jay Henry Mulnik will return to spin the latest tunes, park authorities said. Mulnik made an appearance at a disco swim party at the Wilson Park pool last summer.

The usual admission fees will be charged for the party session.

Isaiah 57:21... "There is peace...saith my God, to the wicked."

We do not have to search long to discover trouble. It is on every hand. And sad to say it will not go away. It will not matter who our president is, nor who goes to serve in Congress. Ambassadors of the highest calibre will not change foreign policy.

When problems abroad are solved then our internal situation must be dealt with, inflation, unemployment and crime.

IS THERE AN ANSWER? Yes there is, if we frankly admit that man is with the seed of sin within himself, and that left alone that seed will bring a harvest of wickedness. No human government can give an answer to bring peace. THERE IS NO PEACE, SAITH GOD TO THE WICKED.

There is an answer in God. Remember this: God loves you. God gave His Son for you. And whoever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have everlasting life.

The love of God will remove the seed of sin and He will give you a new nature. We call it being born again. Christ in you! With this new birth experience you can have peace that passes understanding.

Christ is the answer for all of our needs and all of our cares. His invitation is: "Whoever will, let him come and I will give you rest."

Whoever means you. Why not come to Him?

Actions speak louder than words, mayor says after unexpected votes

By GARY SCHNEIDER of the Press-Record

Strategy used by three vocal critics of the current city administration during Tuesday night's Granite City Council meeting has some political observers scratching their heads.

First Ward Alderman Charles Douglas, who has loudly contended that giving revenue sharing funds to the school district for athletic improvements is illegal, voted Tuesday night in favor of granting $18,898 in revenue sharing funds for Granite City High School North gymnasium bleachers.

Then Douglas and two other aldermen who have vocally opposed the passage of ordinances on the same night they are presented on the council floor, voted unanimously to suspend the rules and approve an ordinance that had just been placed on first reading.

Douglas has openly challenged the legality of the council's approval of funds for soccer and baseball field lights for the Fehling Road sports complex and for bleachers planned at North. He has sought opinions from the state's attorney's office and the state attorney general's office on the legality of the expenditure, which is still being debated.

On Tuesday night, when the township bills were presented for approval, Mayor Paul Schuler urged all the aldermen to read their bill lists before voting.

He then asked Second Ward Alderman Sam Whitmer to "nudge the alderman on your left (Douglas)" and be sure he has looked at the bill list.

After a third statement that the bill list should be studied before being voted on, Schuler then asked City Clerk Robert W. Stevens to note in the minutes of the meeting that "at least three times I asked the aldermen's attention to the bill list."

When a vote was taken on the Granite City Township bills, including the revenue sharing appropriation for bleachers at North high, the 14 aldermen voted unanimously for approval.

Revenue sharing bills totaled $24,845, town fund bills totaled $9,749 and general assistance bills came to $5,317.

The second surprise of the evening came when an ordinance was passed on first reading, without any objections. The ordinance gave the city's endorsement to a $21,473 grant from the Southwestern Illinois Law Enforcement Commission to Coordinated Youth Services for the Alternative Education Program.

Three aldermen—Douglas and Fifth Ward Aldermen Margaret Nomm and Lloyd Bailey—said at a press conference one week ago that they oppose passing ordinances on the council floor the first night the ordinances are presented, since some aldermen do not have an opportunity to study them first.

They contended rapid, "same night" approval of an ordinance empowering City Attorney Lance Callis to arrange the city's mortgage bond issue was one of the factors in a current controversy over the amount Callis received from that program. A story on that controversy appears on today's front page.

Despite the public statements Jan. 10, when a motion was made Tuesday night to suspend the rules and pass the ordinance for the grant to Coordinated Youth Services, all 14 aldermen voted in favor. The ordinance then was approved.

Alderman Roy Poulos of the Third Ward addressed himself to the issue, saying, "Anyone who does not understand an ordinance can ask that it be put on first reading. It's your own fault if you don't. You all know that."

"There is nothing so big that we can't put it off to next week. All it takes is a motion to defer."

After the meeting, Schuler commented on unexpected approvals by the three aldermen, stating, "It would seem to me that they have read the ordinances before the meeting, as the other aldermen do, and as they should."

"While it is an apparent turnaround from their statement recently, it would appear to me to be an approval of the procedure that we have been following for years and years."

Commenting on Douglas' approval of the revenue sharing grant for North, Schuler said, "The minutes show I made Mr. Douglas aware of the expenditure. I am pleased to see that Alderman Douglas is finally in apparent agreement with the expenditure of revenue sharing funds."

"He almost never follows through on his controversial statements," the mayor concluded.

Douglas was reached yesterday afternoon and said his votes were accidental and were because his mind was on the Callis issue and not city business.

"To be honest with you, if I had known the bleachers were on that bill list, I would have voted 'no.' I know Mayor Schuler gave the plenty of opportunity to look at the bill list, but I never look at those. They are just routine," Douglas said. "I don't think one yes vote will have any effect on my complaint (against the city)," he added.

He said his vote to suspend the rules and pass the Coordinated Youth Services grant on first reading was because the question "just went by me." He said his thoughts were on the earlier confrontation and the mayor's refusal to recognize him. "I was disturbed over not being recognized," he explained.

He said, "I think from now on, I will just take Alderman Poulos' suggestion and defer ordinances. All ordinances should go to the ordinance committee (of which Douglas is a member) before being brought to the floor for first reading. We never see those ordinances."

Stray dogs creating problems in Venice, crackdown planned

Venice residents owning dogs that are allowed to run loose may soon be charged $30 or more to get them back, if the animal is picked up by the dogcatcher.

During the Venice City Council meeting held Monday evening, council members, Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols and citizens complained about the many dogs roaming about.

"We will have to ask our dogcatcher to increase his efforts in picking up stray dogs and we may have to triple the fine from $10 to $30, or more," Echols said.

After an Oriole Street resident complained to the council about dogs being allowed to run loose, Alderman Hank A. Svezia said, "That is not the only place the dogs are running loose. I saw a pack of about nine or so this morning by the school."

Dogs in Venice are to be kept tied or fenced or on a leash, according to a city ordinance.

Concern over the cost to the city of the ambulance service was discussed at the meeting.

"Well, the facts are the ambulance service is a blank check agreement and we are stuck with it or else no ambulance service for our city," Mayor Echols said.

"It is costing us about $9,000 a year and the city can't afford it."

"We will just have to work at making collections. I have instructed the city attorney to use every legal means to collect these fees."

"We also need to convince our citizens they must pay the ambulance, Medicare and public aid do not pay the entire bill and the city cannot afford to much longer," Mayor Echols said.

Alderman George Lewis reported that three aldermen had inspected the apartment over the city-owned McKinley Bridge office and recommended the rent be raised from $75 a month to $150 per month.

The council concurred and the city is to give the present tenant 30 days' notice about the rent increase.

The arrest report for December noted $1,185 was paid the city from fines and that a total of 79 arrests had been made. Most of the arrests were traffic violations.

Both the police department and the street department were praised by the council for the job being done by them.

Mayor Echols said he realizes the street sweeper has needed repair, and he feels the council should take a look into the cost. It was estimated that repair could run at least $1,500.

The council met Monday evening, as Tuesday was the birthday of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The next regular meeting of the Venice Council is Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 8 p.m.

Vandals damage vacant house

Earl Chestnut, 2660 Angela Drive, reported at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday that vandals had entered a vacant residence at 2820 W. 20th St. and caused considerable damage.

Walls were damaged in two bedrooms, the kitchen and living room, apparently by being struck with fists or feet, and a faucet was torn from its base. Chestnut discovered the vandalism, probably done in mid-December, upon being released from a 20-day hospital stay.

Caliber of insulation work questioned at town meeting

Madison County's "weatherization" program, which used Comprehensive Employment and Training Act workers to insulate homes against winter weather, came under fire Monday night at the Nameoki Town Board meeting.

Residents in attendance asked why unsupervised workers from CETA, a federal employment program, were being allowed to work without full knowledge of the subject.

Robert Young, a candidate for committeeman from Eagle Park, told Township Supervisor Harold Davis that in one instance, CETA workers delivered to a home in his area storm windows which were too big.

Young said the workers then brought back windows which were too small.

"I just don't know," Young said. "You can have some guys who were auto mechanics trying to do this, and they're not supervised." Davis said he appreciated being notified about such incidents, but said that, for the most part, work done by the workers was satisfactory.

Davis said he will send any more complaints to the county.

In other action: —The board voted to write a letter of appreciation to state Rep. Everett Steele, R-

Glen Carbon, for legislation passed to increase penalties for trains blocking railroad crossings, such as at East 23rd Street.

—Approved transfer of $91 from the contingency fund to the road and bridge fund to pay for utilities.

—Authorized transfer of $550 from the assessor's budget to use for office supplies and telephone bills.

Who needs 14 clubs? John J. Humm, a Long Island, New York, amateur golf champion, once shot a 34 on a 9-hole course, using only a 3-iron. The next day, on the same course, using 14 clubs, he managed only a 40.

Care needs to be taken in setting statewide tax limit

The Illinois Department of Revenue has projected that real estate tax bills in calendar year 1980 are likely to rise an average of 13 percent, an increase considerably above those of previous years. The projection was made on the basis of a survey of local government units made at the request of Governor James B. Thompson and on the basis of data submitted by county officials. The governor asked that the department conduct the survey to determine how this year's real estate tax bills would be affected by (1) the abolition of the corporate personal property tax, (2) local spending practices, and (3) rapidly rising real estate market values.

The survey projected that real property extensions (property tax bills) would be approximately $4.3 billion for 1980, an increase of $495 million over 1979 extensions of $3.8 billion. Increases in property tax extensions are normally related to increased local spending and growth in property values.

The abolition of the corporate personal property tax last year reduced the property tax base of local taxing districts by an average of 12 percent. However, the state contends, most taxing districts failed to take this into account when figuring their tax levies for the coming year. The survey showed that 87 percent of Illinois school districts and other local governments intend to extend tax levies beyond the real property alone at the same level or greater than they did against the combination of real and personal property last year.

The survey further found that while not all districts need to abate their 1979 tax levy, fewer than four percent of the taxing districts took action to abate their 1979 tax levy as originally filed.

Detailed charts prepared by the state intend to help concerned tax payers and taxing bodies are acknowledging that the replacement tax has been fully upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court.

But it would seem more appropriate to use a "rifle" approach—specific action to prevent abuses—rather than the "shotgun" method in which an arbitrary limit is placed on all local-level governmental agencies.

The limit currently being discussed at Springfield, and pushed strongly by the governor, would hold taxing bodies to a ten percent increase for the current year and then the average percent increase in Illinois personal income for the last three calendar years, or 80 percent of that average increase plus new construction in the area.

The plan would not really provide "tax relief," as is apparent from the list of probable exemptions. Omitted from the limit would be bond and interest levies, Public Building Commission Act taxation, compensation claims, court judgments, and property tax extensions. The plan would also exempt home rule cities and counties, pension fund contributions and "backdoor referendum" taxes.

As some critics have pointed out, a ceiling often becomes an excuse for raising taxation to that level. And use of previous levels in determining the next year's limit would discourage a permanent body from lowering taxes in any year.

Loophole in law on Congressional campaign funds

Press-Record, Washington Bureau — Congress has passed legislation to prohibit members of the House and Senate from converting unspent campaign funds to their personal use. Campaign laws have taken well-secured campaign treasuries with them into private life.

Money contained in political campaigns should not wind up in an officeholder's pocket. The new law provides that members of Congress who leave office with a balance in campaign funds must turn it over to some other political committee or donate it to charity.

That's fair enough, but it turns out that the bill passed by the House contains a loophole wide enough to accommodate the entire membership of the present Congress.

The new law will apply only to members elected in the future. Current members will be governed only by the self-imposed rules of their respective houses of Congress. While Senate rules forbid personal use of campaign funds by former senators, House rules are silent on the subject.

Rep. Frank Thompson, the New Jersey Democrat who heads the House Administration Committee, offers a lame excuse for why the House insisted on exempting current officeholders from the new law. He says that many House members who have more campaign money stashed away than they ever expected to spend, and their support was needed to get the political reform bill through the House.

If it is going to be wrong for future members of Congress to take unspent campaign funds with them into retirement, it is just as wrong for present members of Congress to do so.

Mr. Thompson says he may propose a new bill this year to eliminate the ridiculous exemption for current members. We hope he does so, and that Congress is embarrassed enough to pass it.

Housing budget up 28%

By ED GURNEY

The proposed 1980 budget for the Madison County Housing Authority is up 28 percent, and would add more than half of the authority's $460,000 reserves.

The $1,237,207 budget was approved by the authority's board of commissioners. However, it may also be approved by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). HUD is expected to make reductions in the budget, which in turn would lower the amount of reserves to be spent.

The proposed budget includes a 10 percent salary increase for most employees, an expanded painting program and sizeable increases for utilities and maintenance. The budget also includes operation of the authority's 852 conventional units and does not affect Section 8 (rent subsidy) housing units.

The budget approved Jan. 10 includes income of $248,482 in the form of an HUD subsidy, and $234,045 from the authority's reserve funds. Most of the rest of the income is from rents.

Last year, the authority's $962,920 budget received a $204,071 HUD subsidy. The authority had to dip into its reserves for about $26,000, according to Executive Director Janet Harolan.

The 1980 budget as currently written includes a $66,500 expenditure to paint 600 housing units. The housing board changed the policy last summer and no longer allows tenants to paint their own apartments. Casper Nighghossian, board attorney, said the budget is intended as a guide, and does not commit the authority to spend all funds that are requested. The board is expected to discuss the painting procedures before any work is done this year.

A total of $335,000 is set aside for utility costs, up from last year's figure of $294,000.

Maintenance costs are listed at $361,200, an increase from last year's total of $246,000. The proposed painting project is mainly for the new units. A large increase in this area, according to a Charles in a related move, the board Jan. 10 approved its 1980 request for modernization funds amounting to $963,296.

The Granite City School District has received letters from Illinois Superintendent Cronin and the National Opinion Research Center requesting South High be included in a new national longitudinal study of high school students called "High School and Beyond."

Thirty-six sophomores and 36 seniors in each of 1,100 high schools from all 50 states will take part in the survey.

"This is a study of young people during their period of transition from high school to postsecondary education, work and family formation. The study is designed to provide information of value for the development of future educational policy at the federal, state and local levels."

Curriculum Coordinator Warren Collins said Tuesday night. High School and Beyond should provide planners, administrators and researchers with up-to-date information on student behavior and the demand for post-secondary of educational programs to develop the talents and human resources of the population." Approval was given by the Board of Education. Individual student results will be confidential. The overall data is expected to be helpful to the state and to the district.

Solution for Jill-Nameoki

A city engineering design for the Jill Avenue and Nameoki Road intersection near the GCHS South gymnasium was reviewed at Tuesday night's School Board meeting and it was concluded that the plan will provide a solution to most of the traffic congestion in that area.

Four traffic lights will be installed, and on a rotating basis each of the four directions of vehicles will have the opportunity to go straight, turn left or turn right.

A divided roadway will lead into school property, consisting of one westbound entrance lane and two eastbound exit lanes.

2 deaths from natural causes

Granite City Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer said this morning that detailed investigations by his department have concluded that there were no signs of foul play in two deaths last week.

Mrs. Olivia Haven, 62, of 2417 State St., died of smoke inhalation after a candle burned down and started a fire in her home, police believe.

The death of Bruce Heidemann, 29, of 3008 E. 23rd St., Jan. 10, in his apartment has been listed as due to natural causes following an investigation. He had been ill for months and the autopsy showed signs of long play or drugs, authorities said.

DENIAL BY WARFIELD Mac Warfield, a Sixth Ward alderman in Granite City, this week denied that he had heard the city attorney say there would be no legal fee associated with a home mortgage revenue bond.

The allegation, according to Warfield had been voiced by others at a press conference last week.

Laos family enjoys shopping spree during first week here

Shopping for Oriental style foods highlighted yesterday for the newest Quad-City area family, Mr. and Mrs. Yang Chang Yang and their five children.

Here from Laos through arrangements made by the Buddhist Evangelical Free Church, Stratford Lane and Maryville Road, the family is preparing its own meals at its new address, 2808 Maryville, and will emphasize menus of the Far East until they gradually adapting to American food.

All have been a bit "under the weather" this week, their first in Illinois, due to the change in food. Joining the family circle yesterday was a son, Ying, 6, who was briefly hospitalized here. None can speak English but the parents are to learn the language through evening classes. The youngsters will learn in the Granite City school system.

Members of the host church are taking turn spending time with the family, and two Chinese women who attend Southern Baptist church at 2808 Maryville have been able to understand the dialect sufficiently to serve as interpreters.

The family consists of the father, who is 40; the mother, Yang Sui, 37, who is a resident in the same area; son, Son, 11, Ying, and Mang, four; and daughters Pang, 15, and Mee, nine years old.

They spent several years in a Thailand camp for Lao-Lao refugees before making the trip here during the weekend, through the church's 65-member Relief for Refugees Committee and the World Relief Agency of the National Association of Evangelical Churches.

Yang is eager to go to work but is not yet sure what type of job may be available to him. He formerly was a medical technician in a Laotian army.

Attractions in their residence include a gas cooking stove, television set and—as is essential for a family with a teenager—stereo music.

The pastor, the Rev. Robert Widbin, and members of the congregation have discussed the refugee family project for some time. This fall, they made definite contacts, raised more than $1,000 and leased the five-room dwelling.

The Yangs' limited belongings were brought in a shopping bag. When they arrived by plane in California prior to the journey here, they were given costs to help offset the difference in climate between the Midwest and their departure point, Bangkok, Thailand.

News notes

All charges have been dismissed against Randy Decker, 24, Edwardsville, who was accused of severely beating an SUE code last February. A sufficient evidence was cited in the dismissal.

A new group has been formed here and plans to open the Alpha Center for Women, an emergency maternity shelter where expectant mothers can reside. The 15-member board is headed by Mrs. Susan Gasparovic.

Briarcliff area residents will be able to review their home assessments by visiting the assessor's office in the City Hall basement from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21, through Thursday, Jan. 24.

Revised population estimates by the American Statistical Association today showed Madison County with a present total of 250,869, almost unchanged from the 250,911 tallied in the 1970 census.

THEFT OF BATTERIES

Sometime after 8 p.m. Tuesday and 7:50 a.m. Wednesday eight batteries were stolen from vehicles at Fox Brothers, Market and Refound St., Venice, one 12 volt from a crane and four six volt batteries from a tractor-trailer truck.

Agreement had been reached by negotiating teams for the county government and County Employees Local 799.

The proposed contract calls for employees to receive a raise of 30 cents per hour, plus a cost-of-living raise linked to inflation.

The elusive cost-of-living clause is the crux of the confusion, since the agreement calls for employees to receive a one-cent-per-hour increase in pay for each three-tenths of a percent increase in the Consumer Price Index.

Milton estimates the cost of living will decline, so it cost the county about 10 cents per hour in the first quarter, but only about 5 cents per hour in the second, third and fourth quarters of the year.

After lengthy debate, the board decided to put the issue "on the shelf" until the questions can be answered. The union spokesmen said the union stands ready to discuss the issue with the board's finance committee at any time.

The union, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Local 799, held a meeting at 5 p.m. yesterday in a courtroom and a vote was taken after about 90 minutes of discussion. A union spokesman said the vote was almost unanimous to go on strike. Another vote was taken at 7:30 this morning to discuss strike strategy and pickets then appeared around all county buildings, including the court area of the City Hall in Granite City.

Air pollution

Area source emissions of particulates, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxides, hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide increase as population and standards of living increase, Thornton added.

In recent years, area source emissions have contributed a great deal more pollution than industrial sources on most emission categories. However, industrial sources are still responsible for the largest amount of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen dioxide emissions in the Illinois sector of the area.

On the Missouri side of the river, the situation is even more pronounced. "In the City of St. Louis and in St. Louis County, the only air pollutant category in which industrial sources exceed area sources is in sulfur dioxide emissions," Thornton said.

In his study, the SUE researcher also found that while the area produces more industrial emissions of nitrogen oxides than the Missouri side (54.6 percent as compared to 43.3 percent of the sulfur dioxide), 45.4 percent of the hydrocarbons and 40.4 percent of the carbon monoxide industrial emissions in the entire region.

On the other hand, area source emissions from the Missouri side of the river exceed those produced by the Illinois side by a 3:1 ratio in every pollutant category except in hydrocarbons and emissions of carbon monoxide. Missouri is responsible for producing almost twice the amount as the Illinois side.

The researcher said the amount of sulfur dioxide generated by industrial and area sources on both sides of the river measured in tons per year surpasses all other pollutants, except for carbon monoxide emissions. Yet, the impact from this pollutant in the St. Louis area is relatively small, he said.

Thornton attributes the bulk of the pollution in the St. Louis area to industrial sulfur dioxide emissions are produced by utility power generation plants characteristically having high stacks, high emission velocities and high temperatures. "Injection of the atmosphere at relatively high altitudes, sulfur dioxide does not normally affect ground air quality in the St. Louis region."

The major concern for areas downwind of the St. Louis region, contributing to the problem of increasingly more acid precipitation in the New England and Middle Atlantic states," Thornton said.

He commented that coping with tomorrow's air quality problems will largely depend upon decisions made concerning transportation in the nation's capital and in Detroit, as well as those made locally by such agencies as the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council, Southwest Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission and the St. Louis and County Planning departments.

"I guess I will just keep a pad and a pencil and write down the phone messages. That's all I can do," she noted.

The most pressing problem, she explained, is "tomorrow's payday and we have to get the payroll out."

She said she is waiting for word from Madison County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer about the payroll. Hagnauer was meeting this morning with State's Attorney Nicholas G. Byron to discuss options.

A court injunction ordering the employees to return to work may be one of the options, officials said.

have safe and pleasant physical surroundings while at school.

Engineering firms capable of preparing school bond issues, recommendations and specifications are to be contacted and may be interviewed by the Board of Education.

With specifications drawn up this spring, it is planned to have the actual bond issue carried out during the summer months.

"If the citizens and the board concur in the need for a bond issue, the administration will obtain further cost estimates for the exact work remaining to be done," the superintendent related.

All previous school bond issues have been repaid. A substantial rate reduction has been projected for school taxes to be collected next summer, due to the ending of bond debt and related interest payments.

"Serving the Quad-Cities Exclusively for Over 75 Years"

9.5% more funds sought for schools; check teacher supply

The Illinois State Board of Education has voted to recommend for Illinois schools a fiscal year 1980-81 budget increasing state school funding 9.5 percent over 1979-80.

Requesting an increase of $194 million in state support the board's budget recommendation for elementary, secondary, adult and vocational education was adopted during a regular meeting in Chicago.

In other action, the board approved a number of proposed education bills to be submitted during the spring session of the Illinois General Assembly.

One of the proposed bills would increase from five to ten the number of emergency days to be included in the calendars of school districts.

The minimum required number of days for school attendance would remain at 176. However, school officials would prepare a school calendar of 190 days rather than the 185 now used to insure 176 school days.

Also, the bill would expand the Act of God provision of the School Code of Illinois to include conditions considered to be hazardous to the health and safety of students that are beyond the control of a school district.

Plus, the School Code would be amended to credit school districts for a full day of attendance if schools had to be closed after one hour of instruction because of severe weather or conditions considered hazardous to students.

The board's legislative package also includes proposals to:

—Include school nurse interns as professional workers, which would make districts eligible for state support at a rate of one-half of the intern's salary, or $6,250 per worker annually.

—Allow pupils objecting to co-educational physical education classes on constitutional ground to be excluded from such classes.

The bill would provide for substitute physical education programming for those students.

—Provide reimbursement for teachers providing instruction to a handicapped child who is confined to home or a hospital.

In other action, the board:

—Approved desegregation plans for Harvey District 152, Proviso District 209 and Galesburg District 205 under Section 6.1 of the Rules Establishing Requirements and Procedures for the Elimination of Racial Segregation in Schools. The plans for all three school districts were approved until January 1981.

—Directed Rockford District 205 to amend its desegregation plan and submit it to the State Board within 60 days of notification as required by Section 6.3 of the rules.

—Adopted recommendations concerning teacher supply and demand. The recommendations are:

1. Colleges and universities should review their enrollments in certain teaching fields to determine if enrollments adequately meet local school district demands.

2. School districts should work closely with colleges and universities to identify teaching fields in which districts are having difficulty finding qualified teachers.

3. School districts should expand their recruitment activities by seeking qualified applicants statewide.

The Illinois State Board of Education's recommended budget increase of 9.5 percent and hike of $194 million in state spending for elementary, secondary, adult and vocational education calls for an overall budget for Illinois schools of $2.7 billion, including $449 million in federal funds.

The proposed budget will be submitted to the governor and the Illinois General Assembly during its spring session.

The board's FY-80-81 budget request includes proposed revisions in the state aid formula. The revisions would increase the present per-pupil guarantee of $1,363 to $1,498 and would improve the distribution of state aid funds on an equalized basis to school districts.

Also, the revisions would include all of the Aid For Dependent Children count rather than 2-3 of the eligible count, as in the present formula.

The revisions would alter the formula tax rate to improve equity by computing state aid claims on the same total rate for elementary and high school districts as for unit districts. The proposed formula continues the move toward "full access," which—when combined with the rate changes—benefits poorer districts.

The recommended appropriation for general state aid to schools is $1,518,000,000, an increase of $99.2 million over 1979-80 appropriations.

Also, the board recommends full funding of mandated programs.

State income tax forms at county office

State income tax forms will be available in the office of Miss Evelyn M. Bowles, Madison County clerk, during the tax filing period this year.

The county clerk's office is making the forms—the IL-1040 individual income tax return—available as a public service to county residents.

Other state income tax forms and schedules can be obtained by calling the Illinois Department of Revenue at 1-800-252-8972, a toll-free number, or by writing the Department of Revenue, Box 3545, Springfield, Ill. 62708 and specifying the forms needed.

Revenue Department officials expect more than 4.8 million Illinoisans to file state income tax returns this year. The deadline for filing is midnight on April 15.

Sewer district may grow under new law

By GARY SCHNEIDER
of the Press-Record

Three requests to join the special service area in which sanitary sewers now are being constructed may now be considered under legislation newly signed by the governor.

Louis Whitsell, chairman of the Madison County Special Sewer Committee, which now is installing sanitary sewers in parts of Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice townships, said the legislation may be important to the district, but does not allow areas already in the district to detach.

"We already have three areas interested in annexing into the district and it may be possible to help them, but our real problem is with those who already are in the taxing district but should not be," Whitsell said.

"We still are supporting legislation to allow detachment, or de-annexation, of areas like Pine Street, which already has sewer service from Granite City, and Old Alton Road, which is in the sewer district but has too few homes to justify the cost of running a sewer line out to them.

Questions about the new annexation law for special service areas will have to be resolved before the district can consider expanding.

One question is whether anyone joining the district will have to pay the taxes he would have paid if he had been in the district since its inception, officials indicated.

"Granite City is interested in obtaining sewer service for areas such as the land behind the new bank (Colonial Bank at Maryville and Pontoon roads), and one request is on file from a contractor for land on the east side of Route 111, the old Kaseberg farm in Pontoon Beach.

"Stanley Lucas (home and apartment developer) is interested in sewers for an area on the west side of Arlington Heights, but it would be his obligation to run a line from that area to the present sewers at Routes 111 and 162 or at the township h.l. on Route 162," Whitsell said.

Whitsell said the new sewers should be ready to start hook-ups this spring. Rumors now circulating that the Madison County Special Sewer Committee has promised the job of sewer superintendent to one or more persons were discounted during the committee's last meeting.

Committee member Morris Miles said he has heard the rumors and wanted to make a public statement that they are not true.

Committee Chairman

Louis Whitsell agreed, saying the committee does not intend to make its selection for sewer superintendent, secretary or laborer until about 60 days before the new sanitary sewers in Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice townships are ready to begin operations.

Tune in Friday: North-South story continues

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — North vs. South. South vs. North. North-South. South-North. It's a never-ending circle. A vicious circle. And tomorrow (Friday) night, the rivalry will be renewed, this time on the basketball court at Granite City South when Granite North's Steelers come calling for a Gateway East Conference game at 8 p.m. (junior varsity 6:15). It will be the first of two meetings this season between the two.

What does the game mean to the two teams? Well, of course there's the usual city-bragging rights to think of. Those go with any inter-city game. But beginning this season, there's more to think about when it comes to a game between Granite City North and Granite City South.

That's because the two are now in the Gateway East Conference. And right now, that battle means more to South coach Don Deterding than the fact that it's North vs. South.

"It's an important game for us," said Deterding. "Naturally, it's important for the kids and bragging rights. But the conference is important."

"Unfortunately, both of us are fighting for the collar right now. But it's still a conference game and we mean get back into the race."

North coach Bill Ohlendorf feels likewise. "We're winless in the conference right now," he said. "We'd like the South game to be our first conference victory."

The two teams probably won't be caught looking down the road to their next contests — even though they could hardly be faulted if they are. South follows Friday's game with a home contest against powerful Collinsville, the number one ranked school in this week's Press-record Class AA Coaches' Poll. North's next game will be Wednesday against Murphysboro in the Belleville East Tournament.

"If I had my druthers, I'd rather not have the two games back to back," said Deterding. "If we beat North, then we might be too cocky going in against Collinsville. If we get beat by North, we might be down."

The only thing that's good about it is that both games are at home."

The fact that Friday's game is at South comes about because of the installation of new bleachers at North. The game was originally scheduled for North. The game between the two set for later in the season will instead be at North.

North and South offer an interesting contrast in styles.

North, which got off to a slow start, shocked the area over the Christmas break when it swept the field in winning the championship of the Breesse Mater Dei Tournament. Even though the Steelers are winless since the tournament, Ohlendorf said he is happy with the team's play.

Last weekend, for example, the Steelers lost to powerful Cahokia by only 10 points and forced Edwardsville to come from behind to win. In two defeats, North still looked good.

One — no, make that two — of the main reasons for North's ability to play, with any team on a given night are named Dennis and Mike. Page and Robertson, that is.

Page and Robertson, according to Deterding, scare him the most. "They're two of the finest ball players in the area," he said. "They can put it in from about anywhere and light up a team."

"But they've got more than Page and Robertson," he said. "Bob Batey is coming on strong and (Mike) York is capable of doing some damage."

Batey is a 5'9" guard who probably leads the area in one category — hustle. "Bobby has made great progress this season," said Ohlendorf. "I'd say he plays harder than anyone I've seen play in 19 years of coaching. He goes full speed the whole game."

York stands either 6'2" or 6'3", depending on who you talk to. Ohlendorf says he is 6'2", but Deterding thinks otherwise. "You can list him at anything you want," he said. "But I think he's taller than 6'2".

On the South side of the roster, Ohlendorf lists three thorns he hopes to keep from sticking in his side: Blasimgame, Greene and James Blasimgame is regarded as one of the best shooters in the area. But the 6'4" senior forward fell on hard times of sort earlier in the season and is now just getting his touch back.

Kevin Greene is a 6'3" forward who some regard as a "kamikaze." He's fearless. "We've got to try and keep Greene off the boards," said Ohlendorf. "He's a great leaper and is probably the DUPU — It wasn't the prettiest game ever played, but Madison basketball coach Larry Graham will take the victory.

Graham's Trojans got off to a roaring start here Wednesday night, but ended up having to fight off pesky Columbia several times before going on to a 71-56 victory in the semifinals of the Dupu Invitational Tournament.

The win means that Madison, 14-1, will face the winner of tonight's Dupu-Lovejoy semifinal game for the championship Friday at approximately 9 p.m.

Madison stormed out to an early lead and was never behind. But on three occasions in the third quarter, Columbia managed to inch to within three points.

In fact, Patrick Hattergunning from 10 to 15 feet, the Trojans looked as if they were going to blow Columbia's Eagles out of the gymnasium in the first quarter.

Columbia had trouble with Madison's pressing defense and the Trojans took advantage of that trouble, converting countless Eagle turnovers into Trojans baskets.

In fact, Columbia had so much trouble with Madison's defense early in the game that it did not score its first points until just over three minutes remained in the first quarter. That made the score 10-2.

"We looked real good early," said Graham. "When we had them down by about 14 or 16 points and then started committing some turnovers ourselves. Our defense started not performing as well too."

As much as Madison was controlling the flow of the game, it was nonetheless having troubles of its own in finding the bottom of the basket. The score at the end of the first quarter was 18-6. The Trojans started opening up in the second period. Madison started regaining control of the tempo and was having a little less trouble with its shooting. But then, so was Columbia.

The Eagles appeared a little less timid in that

South girls defeat North

GRANITE CITY — Funny how perspective plays its tricks at a basketball game.

For instance, last night Granite City North's girls went down the road to meet the girls from Granite City South.

And although South wound up winning the game 62-44

both teams ended up with a victory of sorts.

The difference was that of perspective. The distance of a few feet between benches was made for a wide difference in the way the game was seen.

On one end of the gym was North coach Harry Cook, who, despite watching his team lose by almost 20 points, was nonetheless pleased by what he saw.

On the other end — the winning end — was South coach Norm Grote, obviously more than pleased with what he saw.

But to avoid confusion the course of the game should be reviewed. After all, that's really where the difference in points of view came from.

The reason North's Steelers could take consolation from the lopsided score was that for at least half the game the score wasn't lopsided at all.

In fact, it was downright nip-and-tuck.

It was a matter of strength meeting strength. In the first quarter, the Steelers had the muscles on defense, as they controlled the boards on both ends of the court.

This fact virtually neutralized the Warriors' outstanding asset — shooting.

"We just weren't hitting the boards in the first half," Grote said.

"Yeah, we did control the rebound," Cook said. "We've done that before this year, too."

So with the Steelers in control defensively, South was unable to utilize its explosive shooting ability. But the Warriors weren't being shut out either. North, on the other hand, was showing much of the cause of Cook's enthusiasm. The Steelers were scoring. Holding their own quite well, thank you.

The Steelers scored four points in the last two minutes of the first quarter, turning an 11-6 score into an 11-10 one at the buzzer.

"Our shooting showed how much we've improved in such a short time," Cook said.

Then in the second quarter, North again held its own. The margin separating the rivals was stretched, then cut, then stretched and cut again.

Halfway through the period, with North refusing to fall back quietly, the Warriors held a no-comfort 18-16 lead.

Only the Steelers could never even the score.

Then it began to turn. South's Chris Boyd got hot, and when Boyd is hot South is hot.

From almost the halfway point till there were only 20 seconds left in the quarter, the Steelers failed to score, while the Warriors ran up a 27-18 lead and went on to lead at the half 27-20.

It was an ominous sign. After the intermission South followed up on what it started.

In the first four and a half minutes of the second half, the Warriors scored four times, seemingly from nowhere.

South controlled the tip, scored, and proceeded to steal the ball from the Steelers three straight times, each resulting in baskets.

When the smoke cleared, South held 42-22 lead. And that was that.

Except for the perspectives.

"I know we got beat by 20 points," Cook said. "But I'm still pleased by the progress we showed. We're getting better every game."

Cook realized that once behind his Steelers failed to get back up, but he's seen that before and has an explanation.

"The same thing happened in the Madison game," Cook said. "We were in the game until the third quarter then we had a mental lapse. It's just a matter of inexperience, but if we continue to improve then maybe the next time we play South things will be different."

South, though, may have something to say about that. And especially South's leading everything, Chris Boyd.

Boyd scored 22 of South's points against North and was the catalyst behind the third quarter surge.

The good thing about Chris is," Grote said, "is that she's only a junior." That, like most things in basketball, may depend on your perspective.

Steeler wrestlers whip Riverview Gardens

By DOUG IRVIN
for the Press-Record

ST. LOUIS — Walt Whitaker's Granite City North wrestling Steelers defeated the Rams of Riverview Gardens on Riverview's mats, 25-19. The Rams have held the Missouri State Title for four years in a row (1976-79) and won the 1979 Holiday Tournament at Granite City South. North is now 12-1; their only loss was to the Maroons of Belleville West.

"North was down only once and that was because of a loss at the first weights. Then North took the lead at 9-0 and never lost it. After the 165 pound bout, the Rams decreased the point spread to one, 20-19. North then won the last bout (heavyweight) and the meet."

Over 200 spectators watched the dual meet and they were basically quiet until the 165 pound bout. The fans, both Granite and Riverview, vocalized their displeasure with the varsity referee — Bob Blanner. Blanner is the head wrestling coach at McCluer North High School.

During the 145 pound clash, Scott Corey of North was warned for stalling late in the second period. With the score tied at zero going into the third period, Corey was on bottom. He reversed Ram Tim Downs and led, 2-0. Corey was working with an arm bar and Blanner penalized him for stalling, 2-1.

The North crowd and coaches howled. Blanner then penalized Corey for an illegal clasp of hands while on the mat. Corey was squating with his hands clasped around Downs' waist for control. That error led the score at 2-2. Downs was awarded an escape with 18 seconds remaining and won 3-2. From that match on, neither crowd settled down. The 145 pound bout was not the only one with disputed calls. In one bout, North was awarded a reversal when the Riverview wrestler still held onto the legs of the Steeler. Another such call was the awarding of only two near-fall points to a North grappler when Blanner counted off six seconds. A wrestler is supposed to receive three points for five or more seconds.

At 98 pounds Mike Robinson of North had a tight 11-8 match with John Schamel; and at 105, Steeler Steve Smith lost a heart-breaking 4-2 bout to Kurt Sergiewich. Smith had Sergiewich locked up in a cradle with 27 seconds remaining, but the Ram escaped.

Then the Steelers gained temporary control. At 112, North's only unbeaten wrestler, Jerry Miller, a junior with a 20-0 record, received a 6-5 decision over Mark Taylor. At 119, Tracy Patton of North received a forfeit and North gained the lead, which they never let out of their grasp, 9-6.

Bob Kirgan, a senior from North, whipped up on senior Ram Rick DeBeer. Kirgan won 16-6. Glenn Thompson of North lost to good match to Greg Mabrey, 10-6. Kevin Shemwell, another senior Steeler, beat Bill Denny 14-5 at 136.

Then came the Steeler-frustrating 145 pound exhibition of injustice. Corey lost 2-5 to Downs. At 155, Bill Zimmer, a Steeler freshman, was beaten by senior Jeff Maddox, 12-4. North, at this time, led the meet 17-16.

Tom Nance, 167 of North, won a 5-4 decision over Joe Zakrzewski; and at 185, Dave Owens lost 6-3 to Eddie Bryant. The team score was 20-19 with Steeler junior Tim Wrostelek left against sophomore Jim Brogan in the uninitiated battle.

Both wrestlers were warned for stalling in the first period. Then, Wrostelek got the original takedown. In the second period, Wrostelek was awarded penalty points for stalling done by Brogan and two near-fall points. Then Wrostelek, with the expressed joy of the Steeler fans, scored a reversal and six near-fall points in the final period to win 14-0.

"I wanted to get him, bad," said Wrostelek with sweat rolling off of his forehead. "I wanted the team to win — we were a joint effort by all of us."

"I have always told my kids how much better Illinois wrestling is compared to Missouri wrestling," said Steeler coach Walt Whitaker. "This win will give the kids all the confidence they need."

"What really helped us a lot," said Whitaker, "is the fans we brought over in a pep bus."

Tonight, the Steelers host the wrestlers from Belleville Althoff. And, tomorrow and Saturday, North is entered in a 14-team tournament in Quincy.

Quincy Tourney next for oncoming GC North

QUINCY — The Granite City North wrestling Steelers get no rest after their victory Tuesday over Riverview Gardens. This weekend, they travel to Quincy to do battle with 13 other teams in the 12th annual Quincy Invitational Tournament.

North is considered one of the favorites to capture the team title, according to Quincy coach Rolfe Platt. "There are three top-notch teams entered," said Platt. "Granite North, Cahokia and East Moline. Any one of them has a good shot at winning it."

Cahokia is the defending champion of the meet. Last season, because of icy road conditions, only nine teams could make it to the tournament. North was not one of them.

Other teams entered in the meet are: Rock Island, Althoff, Springfield Senior, Springfield Lanphier, Decatur MacArthur, Stephen Decatur, Decatur Eisenhower, East St. Louis Lincoln, East St. Louis Sr., Clifton Central, Quincy Sr., Burlington Iowa. All except Clifton Central are Class AA schools.

Platt said the top two wrestlers he feels to watch are North's Tracy Patton (at 112 pounds) and Kevin Beman of Cahokia (at 145). Granite City North won the team championship in 1976.

North passes Cahokia

GRANITE CITY — Some good news and some bad news for Granite City prep wrestling fans in this week's edition of the Press-Record Coaches' Poll.

First the bad news: Belleville West moved farther ahead of Granite South in the race for first place, receiving all five first place votes after last week moving into the top spot for the first time this season by the margin of a single point.

Now the good news: Granite City North's wrestling team has moved ahead of Cahokia into third and is now setting its sites on the second place position.

North moved one point ahead of Cahokia, mainly by virtue of its win Tuesday night over Riverview Gardens, the champion of the South Christmas Tournament and the defending Missouri state champion.

Cahokia comes up short

GRANITE CITY — It's still early in the girls high school basketball season, time for teams to size up opponents, time to test the opposition.

Granite City South's girls on the basis of what they saw in Cahokia Tuesday night can definitely put a bright red mark beside the Comanches name on their schedule.

That would stand for T, as in tough, which is South as the Warriors found Cahokia.

South won the game 52-50. But that took an outstanding effort and every last second on the scoreboard clock.

"You don't like to have many of these emotional kind of games in a row," South coach Norm Grote said. He knew his team had to face rival Granite City North, traditionally the most emotional kind of game on South's schedule, the following night.

But first the Warriors had to deal with the problem at hand. And Cahokia proved to be full of enough emotion to provide a warm up for any rivalry.

Fittingly, the game was one of those ball in the air at the final buzzer affairs.

And more fittingly it was South's Chris Boyd who delivered the deciding shot. Boyd both the spark and flame of the Warriors, put in 23 points in the game. But the one that counted most was the one let go as the buzzer filled her ears.

"We called a time out with just a few seconds left," Boyd said. "We just wanted to get the ball to Chris and let her shoot."

Nothing profound, but the logical choice. Boyd won the game.

It was the end to a pattern that emerged throughout the course of the contest.

Cahokia led at the end of a quarter 13-12. South came back to lead by two at the half. The Comanches regained the lead by the end of the third quarter, 43-42. Then came the fourth quarter and Boyd's sensational final shot.

That despite the fact, that Cahokia's Katy Lyons and Gloria Brown had 15 and 17 points respectively.

Enough to send the Warriors home to mark up their schedules.

Alton and Venice move up

GRANITE CITY — The news in this week's Press-Record — Herald prep basketball polls is not at the top, but in the middle.

Two teams moved up considerably in each of the polls from last week. Alton, after a convincing victory over East St. Louis Sr., replaced the Flyers in the number two spot in the Class AA (large school) poll.

In the Class A poll, Venice moved up from ninth place last week to a fifth place tie with Weslin, by virtue of a pair of convincing victories last weekend over Livingston and large St. Louis School Summer.

Also moving up considerably was Brooklyn-Lovejoy. The Wildcats moved ahead of Okawville and Lebanon into second place and received one first place vote after whipping Cairo, the second-ranked

In the Class AA poll, East St. Louis Lincoln is in fourth

In the Class A poll, there is another tie besides the one between Venice and Weslin. Okawville and Lebanon each tied with 38 points and third place, just one point back of Lovejoy.

East St. Louis Assumption, once as high as second this season, dropped to ninth. The Tigers were completely left off two ballots. New Athens brings up the rear with nine points.

Among the other teams receiving votes were Waterloo, Nashville, Dupu and Chester.

South skaters split games

ST. LOUIS — The Granite City South club ice hockey team lost to Afton 9-6 here Monday night, despite a remarkable five-goal performance from Warrior Tim Dix.

The loss came on the heels of a 4-2 South win Saturday over Okawville in which Dix had one goal and two assists. Monday, after falling behind 3-1 at the end of the first period and 6-1 after two, South came back to make things interesting.

Afton went ahead 1-0 early on a goal by Echarb. But Dix scored on an assist by Chris Hinterser to knot things up. But Afton's Von Bearden and Jim Grassi put their team ahead.

In the second period, Grassi scored the first and third goals of the period, warped around one by Von Bearden. Then came the exciting third period.

Dix got things started when he scored of assists from Hinterser and Ron Briddick. After a goal by Afton's Stinger, South's Pat Theis scored from Mike Hassler and Ron Snelson. Then Dix scored two more goals — the first from Hassler and the second from Briddick and Snelson.

Gable of Afton gave his team some breathing room when he scored an unassisted goal.

Dix got South back within two goals when he hooked up with Briddick and Hassler for his fifth goal. But that was as far as the Warriors could get. Afton's Hoffman put the game out of reach with a late goal.

In Saturday's South victory, the Warriors got goals from Dix (assists to Tim Phelps and Kevin Sherlock), Phelps (Dix and Briddick), Briddick (Dix) and Phelps again (Sherlock).

The split gives South a 3-8-1 record going into Saturday's game against Kirkwood at the North County rink, which begins at 9:15 p.m.

Track owner says auto racing not fuel hog

Special to the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — A local speedway operator says he believes auto racing, which is second to football as a spectator attraction, can co-exist with the gasoline crisis. Wib Spalding, Granite City resident and operator of the Godfrey Speedway, returned last weekend from a St. Louis convention at the Airport Hilton of track and drag strip owners, and said the fuel shortage was a major topic of discussion at the meeting. But Spalding and other racing promoters are less worried about possible rationing and its effect on racing attendance than they are about over-reaction on the part of people who think auto racing is a major user of fuel. Other major sports use far more fuel, according to Spalding. "People tend to think racing uses a lot of fuel, because our use is more conspicuous than that of other sports," Spalding said. "They are usually very surprised to learn that football, baseball, hockey and most other professional sports use much more fuel than racing."

How does football use more fuel than auto racing? Spalding cited the example of a team flying by chartered jet aircraft, traveling 1000 miles for a game. At 450 gallons an hour and 1500 gallons per hour fuel consumption, that's 6000 gallons for the round trip," Spalding explained. "That's as much fuel to play a single game as the average speedway uses in ten weekly programs, or about half a season." He added that a single round trip coast-to-coast flight by a sports team consumes twice the fuel it takes to run the entire Daytona 500 stock car race.

Even in total fuel use—which includes both spectator and team travel, (lights for night events, etc.), Spalding says racing is still a minor energy user compared to other sports and leisure activities has far down the list in total energy usage, behind such activities as horse racing, football, basketball, movie theater attendance and vacation travel, which headed the study's energy use list by a huge margin. Spalding believes that if the fuel shortage curtails travel, some major racing events which depend heavily on traveling fans may suffer, but local attractions, such as the nation's smaller speedways, are going to become more important in providing people with close-to-home entertainment.

"Anyone suggesting that auto racing should be discontinued to save fuel had better be ready to give up other major sports as well," Spalding concluded. "Our use is the proverbial drop in the bucket compared to theirs."

Bowling pairings out

BLOOMINGTON — Competition in the eighth annual Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Girls State Bowling tournament series — providing for the first time advancement to the State Final for both teams and individuals — gets under way at 20 district sites the weekend of Feb. 1-2.

Team and individual qualifiers will advance from the districts to the State Final Tournament scheduled the weekend of Feb. 8-9 at Town and Country Lanes, Peoria. Richwoods High School will host the State Final.

A total of 120 downstate, suburban and non-Chicago Public League schools have entered the 1980 series, 10 less than a year ago. Four of the 20 districts will be conducted Friday, Feb. 1, with the remaining 16 slated for Saturday, Feb. 2. District qualifiers will be joined by qualifiers from the Chicago Public League tournament at the State Final.

The top placing team from each district advances to the State Final Tournament, along with the top four placing teams in the Chicago Public League. The top two (2) individual bowlers from teams participating in the districts, along with the top eight bowlers from teams participating in the Chicago Public League tournament also advanced to the State Final. District competition will consist of a pair of three-game rounds. Total pinfall will determine qualifiers for the State Final.

The State Final will consist of four rounds of three-game series. In both team and individual competition, participants will advance from one round to the next based upon total pinfall through the given round.

In the team series, all qualifying teams will bowl in the first round at 9:00 a.m. Friday, Feb. 8, with the 16 highest-scoring teams advancing to the quarterfinals, which are scheduled for Friday at 2:00 p.m. The top eight scoring teams will advance from the quarterfinals to the semifinals, which are scheduled for 9:00 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 9. The four top teams advance from the semifinals to the finals, which are scheduled for 1:00 p.m. Saturday.

In the individual competition, which will be conducted simultaneously with the team rounds, and which will include all bowlers participating in the State Final, the 20 highest-scoring bowlers in the first round advance to the quarterfinals. The top 10 in the quarterfinals advance to the semifinals and the top 10 from the semifinals advance to the final round. In all rounds, after the first round, bowlers from teams advancing as well as the separate individual qualifiers will be competing for individual honors.

Agington won last year's title with a total pinfall of 9,905, edging Dixon, which was runnerup at 9,847. Dawn Pratt of Evergreen Park took top individual series and game honors with a 536 and 252, respectively.

Cougars thump Bearcats

EDWARDSVILLE — The Southern Illinois University Edwardsville basketball team defeated the McKendree College Bearcats 82-74 in a game at Edwardsville High School gym.

SIUE jumped out to an early nine-point lead and appeared headed to an easy victory. But McKendree Coach Harry Staham's crew waded none of that. The "Cats" came inching back and eventually took a two point lead late in the first half on two occasions. But a basket by SIUE's Bill Branz at the buzzer gave the Cougars a 40-38 halftime lead.

After trading baskets early in the second half, SIUE went on a tear, and took a 12-point lead 78-66 at one point. SIUE was led by freshman sensation Ted Smith's 20 points. He was followed by Jerome Nelson's 19, including two slam-dunks, in the second half that brought the crowd of over 2,000 to its feet. Gary Havesman led McKendree with 20 points.

The victory raised SIUE's record to 8-7, while McKendree dropped to 12-4.

"Hey, don't sell Columbia short," said Graham. "They played hard tonight. There were several times they could have just given up, but they stayed in there."

To illustrate the point, Columbia is the same team that lost to powerful Lebanon by only one point last week and pushed Venice to the limit before losing to the Red Devils in the first round of the Columbia-Freeburg Christmas Tournament.

Madison's 6'5" sophomore center Mark Zarr made his second start of the season against Columbia and looked good early. But he ran into some turnover problems later. "Mark having some problems catching the ball right now," said Graham. "But he's a player. He doesn't lack a bit of enthusiasm. He'll be alright."

Part of the reason Zarr started for the second straight game was that regular starting guard Rickey Powers was suspended because of disciplinary regulations at Madison High. He missed the East St. Louis Assumption game last week, but should be back for Friday's game.

"That's one thing about our school," said Graham. "Rules are rules. No one is exempt. It teaches the kids something about the way things are."

It is not the first time a member of the Madison squad has missed games because of disciplinary reasons. The same thing has occurred in each of the last two seasons also.

most aggressive players they've got. He probably does for them what Batey does for our club with his hustle."

Heubner, a 6'4" forward-turned-center began the year at the forward spot and looked good early. But his scoring slacked off and deterring moved him inside. It appears to have worked, with Heubner starting to get his points again.

Taking some of the pressure off those three will probably be 6'5" center Bill Skinner. After starting early in the season, he hasn't seen nearly as much action lately. But he came in off the bench last Friday against Roxana and performed well.

Both coaches said they probably won't change much of the way they approach games just for one contest.

Deterding said that if all goes like it has in the past, something out of the ordinary will happen just the same. "Usually it's somebody you least expect to do well who does you in," he said. "In these games, you just never know."

Area water plan is first in Illinois approved by U. S.

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator John McGuire has conditionally approved the 208 Areawide Water Quality Management Plan for Madison, Monroe and St. Clair counties, it was announced this week. This is the first 208 Plan within the state of Illinois to gain federal approval.

"We believe this action represents a major milestone in our combined efforts to abate point and nonpoint sources of water pollution," McGuire stated in his approval memorandum, "and we stand ready to assist the state and the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission as the critical implementation phase gains momentum."

"The commendable work" accomplished by the Southwestern Commission in preparing the water quality management plan was acknowledged by McGuire. The commission's extended this acknowledgement to all public officials and area residents who provided guidance and assistance, not only in preparation of the initial 208 Plan but in continuing to assist and support the federally-mandated program.

The areawide management coordinating board of the 208 water quality management plan has conducted a public meeting to present its proposed work program elements for the coming year.

"It will all be academic if Governor Thompson does not sign the Illinois EPA supplementary appropriation, it was disclosed.

Jackie Bruemmer, 208 program manager, told the financial status of the 208 plan.

"Everyone is up against the same problem," she said. "U.S. EPA say after 1983 there will be no federal funding. Every one is looking for state and federal funds."

She said the agency has requested $183,017 for 1980. Of this, $137,263 would be federal funds, $45,754 non-federal.

The non-federal funds would come from the $50,000 which is in the Illinois EPA appropriation that the governor has delayed signing.

"If he does not sign it, we simply can't proceed with this," she commented.

Staff members reported on the five-point program.

Mary Clement, of the 208 planning staff, told where the operational control programs stand. They have been developed for two of the five watersheds.

An application for EPA funding for Highland Silver Lake is in, and Horsehoe Lake is in "the works."

The objective this year is to develop a program for Fountain Creek watershed.

She said there is "a good chance of funding" for the Highland Silver Lake program.

Programs will define contracts to be signed by farmers each year. Funding will be either federal, state or local with local matching funds.

Asked who provides the local matching funds, Mary

Clement said individual farmers are the local match source.

Mike Keefe of the planning staff reported on sludge resource management. This is funded for phase I of two phases.

He said the study is looking for alternative methods of disposing of sludge; two will be presented to communities in phase II, asking them if they want to engage in a program.

Ken Reynolds of Belleville, vice-president of the AMCB, presiding in the absence of chairman Lewis Krause of Collinsville, said Belleville has bought 40 acres of additional sludge lagoon space. He asked whether it should have acquired an off-site lagoon arrangement.

There was talk of the possibility of selling sludge to strip mine operators who need to restore fertility to their restored lands.

One member told of attending a meeting where the idea of selling U.S. sewage treatment sludge to the Arabs was mentioned. "I said it was important to protect, but I was the only one."

Sludge must be analyzed for metals from industrial effluents, it was pointed out. Keefe also reported on the ground water resource management program. He said it was important to protect the American Bottoms aquifer from degradation because it is the source of water for Collinsville, Maryville, Glen Carbon and Troy.

"When ground water becomes polluted, it takes a very long time to clean it up," he said.

This program has been having funding problems. The 208 group wanted to identify several potential sources of pollution by drilling and testing, which is expensive. It wasn't funded. It wanted to inventory potential sources of ground water pollution, but wasn't funded for that, either.

Keefe said the EPA has data on ponding areas and landfills but they have never been evaluated. The 208 group wants to identify all septic tanks in the American Bottoms, where the groundwater level is extremely high.

The Phase II effort will be to provide data essential to development of an operational control program for future implementation by management agencies.

Planner Don Wallace described an experiment with a technique to reduce erosion of the hillside while still farming them.

"We want to see if we can produce a crop in the bluffs in existing sod," he said; the yield will be less than on land cultivated in the usual way, but it could be greater than the yield from eroded soil or from letting it lie fallow for fear of erosion.

The 208 water coordinating board has five members each from Madison, St. Clair and Monroe counties. From each county there are two elected municipal officials, one member of the county board, one trustee of a sanitary district and the chairman of the Soil and Water Conservation District.

The Southwestern Planning Commission assists the 208 group.

Alexander Bartley, 72, dies

Alexander Oliver (Barkowski) Bartley, 72, of 2304 Lincoln Ave., was pronounced dead upon being taken from his home to St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 10:38 a.m. Monday.

He had been in ill health and under a physician's care for a lengthy period of time. Mr. Bartley had resided in Granite City for the last 69 years. He was born in St. Louis.

Before retiring, he was a self-employed bookkeeper. During World War II, Mr. Bartley served with the Granite City Auxiliary Police Unit.

He also was manager of the St. Louis Blues girls' softball team for many years and a member of the Swiss Boosters Club of St. Louis.

Mr. Bartley was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church. He had never married.

Among the survivors is a brother, Edward Bartley of Granite City.

Burglary on Madison Ave.

Burglars stole a 22 caliber revolver and several rounds of ammunition from the home of Donald Mayes, 1439 Madison Avenue, last week.

A matching revolver and a BB pistol, both in a two-gun holster, a 12-gauge shotgun and a piggy bank were moved inside the house, but were not taken.

Entry was gained by breaking glass in a door. Glass in the gun cabinet also was broken. Police questioned a Granite City man after the incident, but released him without filing charges.

December arrests up one-third

By GARY SCHNEIDER of the Press-Record

Major crime in Granite City rose only one percent from December 1978 to December 1979, but the number of cases cleared by arrest rose 33 percent, comparing the two Decembers, a monthly report released by Nadine Harrison, secretary to Police Chief Ronald Veizer, showed Tuesday.

The document noted significant reductions during December in assault and auto theft cases, as compared to the same month a year earlier. Assault incidents dropped 51 percent, from 31 cases in December 1978 to 15 last month, and auto theft cases were down 25 percent, from 16 cases in 1978 to nine last month.

Also showing a decline was the incidence of larceny, where a drop from 16 cases in December 1978 to 12 cases last month was shown.

Increases were shown in four categories. The incidence of robbery climbed from two cases in December 1978 to five cases last month, a 250 percent increase. Also showing large increases were auto burglary cases, up 30 percent from 40 incidents in 1978 to 52.

There were no murder or rape cases in either December, but there was one reckless homicide case last month compared to none in the same month of 1978. The good news was that arrests rose dramatically in robbery and auto burglary cases when comparing December with the same month of 1978. Auto burglary arrests rose from one in December 1978 to nine last month, a 900 percent increase, and the six robbery arrests last month were a marked improvement over no robbery arrests in December 1978.

The number of persons arrested for charges, other than traffic, was up four percent in comparing the two Decembers. 131 non-traffic arrests were made during December 1979, up from 180 in December of the previous year.

Including traffic arrests, the 327 persons arrested last month are five percent more than the 311 persons arrested in December 1978. The number of charges filed against persons last month, 411, was 12 percent higher than the 368 charges filed in December 1978, according to the report.

It notes that police department answered 1,674 complaints and accident calls last month.

Assessor office in Chouteau town hall

New Chouteau Township Assessor Marion Sparks will have his office in the township hall on North Thurgate Drive, it was announced Monday night.

The town board of trustees voted to purchase a new desk and chair for the assessor, at a cost of $800.

Supervisor Walter Sparks said he called three office supply firms and recommended the purchase from the lowest of the three.

Marion Sparks has moved the assessor's records into the township hall already, and separate telephone facilities are to be installed later this week.

THEFT FROM TRUCKS

Vandals damaged the building and looted two trucks at the Marion J. Stamps Sewer and Pipe Cleaning Service office at 1501 Grand Ave., it was discovered Monday. Two windows of the building were broken by rocks. Vehicle batteries worth about $80 each were taken from a Stamps company pickup truck and an AA Quick Service tank truck on the lot, and about 12 gallons of gasoline were siphoned from Stamps' truck.

Trust fund is established for handicapped facilities

Illinois Conservation Director David Kenney has announced the establishment of a trust fund to accommodate monetary gifts from citizens or corporations for improvement or construction of facilities for handicapped users of Conservation Department sites.

Director Kenney said the fund solves the problem the DOC has had in the past when such contributions have been received, but offered. It also is a response to questions as to where such gifts can be forwarded.

The fund, however, is not unique, Kenney pointed out. A similar fund exists for donations to improve state historic sites, and there is another for contributions to the state's Youth Conservation Corps.

Dr. Sitas Singh, coordinator of the Conservation Department's programs for the handicapped, said there is no minimum or maximum limitation on contributions; donors may earmark any amount they wish for use in the handicapped program.

Donations will be tax deductible.

A contribution — or proceeds of a will — may be designated for use on a specific site, as long as the money is used for conservation-oriented facilities benefiting handicapped or elderly visitors to a state site.

Donations will not be accepted by the fund for monuments, memorials, plaques, statues for other such structures or equipment which does not contribute to improvement of a park's accessibility and usability by the handicapped or elderly, or promote the recreational use of a site by such patrons.

Dr. Singh said contribution designations need not be restricted to structures or "hammer and nail" types of projects, such as construction of shelters, fishing piers, interpretive nature centers or trails.

They also may be earmarked for audio equipment, film or slide projectors, projection screens, laser recorders and similar equipment.

Nor must the use of the facility, equipment or structure be limited exclusively to the handicapped, Singh pointed out.

"That would be in opposition to the whole 'mainstreaming' philosophy of our program for the handicapped."

"Mainstreaming" is geared to make our park facilities as accessible and usable for the handicapped as they are for the non-handicapped, and avoiding the stigma attached to calling special attention to these people or providing special facilities for their exclusive use," said Singh who, like many of the people he seeks to serve, is confined to a wheelchair.

The new trust fund also may be used as a repository for federal grants obtained by the Conservation Department for improvement or construction of facilities for the handicapped, the program coordinator noted.

"The purpose of this fund is to provide us with access to additional funds — over and above what we receive from the department's budget or federal sources — that may be available from private or corporate contributions."

"The special target area for funds of this kind will be the upgrading and expansion of our interpretive programming for handicapped children," Dr.

Singh said.

While the new trust fund provides a vehicle for acceptance of monetary donations, no such special device is needed for DOC acceptance of other types of contributions, including equipment, lumber, tools, tape recorders, volunteer help and many other kinds of goods and services, Singh noted.

"We can use almost anything we can get," he added.

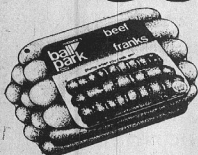

Monetary contributions may be forwarded to: Conservation Handicapped Program Fund, in care of the Department of Conservation, Bureau of Lands and Historic Sites, 405 E. Washington St., Springfield 62706.

For further information on the trust fund or DOC's programs for the handicapped, Quad-Cityans may call Dr. Singh at (217) 782-0263.

Dog prefers people food and beer

By H.P. JANS
D.V.M.

Q. My son has a small dog half-Chihuahua, half-terrier. She won't eat canned dog food, wants people food, and gets it.

A. My son gives her beer, which she is very fond of. Will this do her any harm? She is 7 years old. — M.S.

A. Although beer will not do extensive damage unless given in large quantities, it is not advisable to do so.

As for table food, an animal is not able to get all the vitamins, protein, etc., that their body requires, as they can from a well-balanced diet of canned or dry dog food. Also giving an animal table food will produce a very finicky eater.

Instead of offering table food when an animal refuses to eat its own food, leave the dog food down and do not offer any treats of any kind. It won't take long for it to get the idea that there is nothing else to eat but what is there. The whole point is not to give in. No healthy animal will starve itself to death.

USP DISPENSING INFORMATION

About Your Medicines

by The United States Pharmacopeial Convention, Inc.

When purchasing a medicine, whether over-the-counter (nonprescription) or with a doctor's prescription, you may have questions about its usefulness to you, the best way to take it, possible side effects, and advisable precautions. For instance, some medicines should be taken with meals, others between meals. Some may make you drowsy while others may tend to keep you awake. Alcoholic or other beverages, other medicines, certain foods, or smoking may affect the way your medicine works. As for side effects, some are merely bothersome and may go away while others may require medical attention.

This is the first in a series of columns about commonly used medicines. The materials have been abstracted from USP Dispensing Information, which is a volume of information compiled by the United States Pharmacopeial Convention. The information represents the consensus of more than 300 medical and pharmaceutical experts. These are the same people who develop standards for strength, quality, and purity of the medicines you use (for example, Aspirin Tablets, USP). These letters meet the standards specified in the United States Pharmacopeia.

The information presented in this column may provide general answers to some of your questions as well as suggestions for the correct use of your medicine. It is important to remember, however, that medicines are complex and may act differently on different people. If you feel that you need additional information about your medicine or its possible effects, ask your doctor or pharmacist. They are there to help you.

General Information about Use of Medicines

- Tell your doctor and pharmacist about any medical problems you may have and all medicines you are now taking or have taken in the past few weeks. Don't forget over-the-counter (nonprescription) medicines such as aspirin, laxatives, and antacids.
- Before having any kind of surgery (including dental surgery) or emergency treatment, tell the doctor or dentist in charge about any medicine you are taking.
- Tell your doctor and pharmacist if you have ever had an allergic or unusual reaction to any medicine.
- Most medicines contain more ingredients than the active drug substance itself. If you are on a low-salt, low-sugar, or any other special diet, or if you are allergic to any substance, such as yellow dye, check with your doctor or pharmacist about whether the other ingredients in your medicine would be a problem.
- Certain medicines, when taken during pregnancy (especially in the first months) or by women who are breast-feeding babies, may cause problems in the child. Check with your doctor before taking any medicine during pregnancy. If you plan to become pregnant, or if you are breast-feeding an infant.
- Take medicine exactly as directed, at the right time, and for the full length of time prescribed by your doctor. If you are using an over-the-counter (nonprescription) medicine, follow the directions on the label, unless otherwise directed by your doctor or pharmacist. If you feel that your medicine is not properly working for you, check with your doctor and pharmacist.

- Keep all medicines out of the reach of children.

• Child-proof caps on most prescription medicines for oral use are required by law. However, if there are no children in your home, you may find it hard to open such caps. You may ask your pharmacist for a regular, easier-to-open cap. He or she is authorized by law to furnish you with a regular cap if you request it.

• How to store your medicine: Store medicine in a dim or dark, cool, dry place such as a kitchen cabinet or the bedroom, out of the reach of children. Do not store medicine in the bathroom, where it is too warm and humid, or in the refrigerator unless you are told to do so.

• Different medicines should never be mixed in one container. Always store your medicine in its original container, kept tightly capped when not in use. Do not remove the label since directions for use and other special information appear there.

• To avoid mistakes, do not take medicine in the dark. Always read the label before taking, noting especially the expiration date of the contents.

• If you think you have taken an overdose of any medicine or if a child has taken a medicine by accident: Call your poison control center or your doctor or pharmacist, at once. Keep these telephone numbers handy. Also, keep a bottle of Ipecac Syrup USP safely stored in your home in case you are told to cause vomiting. Read the directions on the label of Ipecac Syrup before using.

• If you notice unusual reactions or side effects while taking any medicine, check with your doctor or pharmacist.

• After your doctor has told you to stop taking a medicine, ask if you should save it for future use. If not, discard by flushing it down the toilet. Never give your medicine to anyone else. It has been prescribed for your personal medical problem and may not be the correct treatment for another person and may be harmful.

• It is a good idea for you to learn both the generic and brand names of your medicine and even to write them down and keep them for future use.

• Do not be embarrassed to ask questions about any medicine you are taking. To help you remember, it may be helpful to write down any questions you have and bring them with you on your next visit to your doctor or pharmacist.

The next column in this series will present specific information about Benzodiazepines, a group of medicines commonly used as tranquilizers.

Our Children

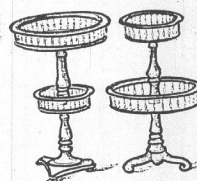

Q. My wife and I are having our first serious disagreement in the three years that we have been married and it's really over a foolish object — our baby's "security blanket."

He is 8 months old and insists on going to bed with it. She feels it should be taken away, and I think there is no harm in it so why make an issue over it.

What do you think? A. Some people feel that babies demand their blanket as a substitute for love, attention, holding and hugging, but if that is true, how does one explain the many loved and cherished children who cling to their blanket or some other object?

You seem to be close to the right track, with perhaps these few suggestions: Limit the attachment to bedtime. Keep it clean. Provide one of his toys as a substitute once in a while, varying the toy occasionally. The habit seldom lasts long anyway.

Antique Furniture File

These are 19th century "Basket Stands" as they appeared in A. J. Downing's "The Architecture of Country Houses" in 1859. They were usually made of walnut, mahogany or rosewood, but few of them have survived the ravages of time. These items are not only more tastefully designed than most Victorian furniture, but they also serve many useful functions in a modern home, which is more than can be said for spinning wheels, churns, etc. Scarcity has made their value relatively high; if you can find one for sale in the low hundreds, but it's a bargain.

Ask The Doctor

Irregular heartbeat cause for concern

By WILLIAM J. GOLDWAG, M.D.

Q. What would be the cause of sudden irregular heartbeat, with tightening of the throat and pain in the arms? After taking aspirin, the throat and arm pains go away, but the irregular heartbeats last 12 to 15 hours after returning to normal. These attacks average two or three times a week. I haven't consulted a doctor yet.

A. There are more details needed in the history to accurately answer your questions. First, do the pains ever come at other times, for example, after exertion or exercise?

If they do, there is a strong likelihood that angina pectoris is present. This is a condition due to narrowing of the coronary arteries, the ones supplying the heart muscle with blood, thereby creating a shortage of oxygen when the heart works harder.

It would also be useful to know if the heartbeat is rapid in addition to being irregular. A very rapid heartbeat can also make the heart work harder, and if there is only a marginal blood supply to it, will often result in angina.

Some very irregular kinds of heartbeat even if not extremely rapid can reduce the efficiency of heart action so that angina may develop. One such irregularity is called atrial fibrillation. In this state, the upper chambers of the heart (the atria) do not contract as they are supposed to, but instead they just quiver (fibrillate). This causes the lower chambers (the ventricles) to beat irregularly instead of at a nice steady pace the way they usually do.

It would be wise to consult a physician to get clear on these points and to have an electrocardiogram and perhaps other tests to see if the circulation to the heart is satisfactory. Sometimes aspirin can relieve heart pain, but there are other medicines that are more effective if it turns out that the trouble is coming from poor coronary circulation.

It is also possible that you are just having episodes of premature or extra beats. This isn't as serious as the previous possibility and the pain can be relatively minor, but the risk in ignoring a possible coronary problem is too great to just guess at it. Your doctor can be very helpful to you in this situation.

Q. My husband has tuberculosis and he spends so much time baby-sitting his 8-year-old granddaughter, which he has done for almost 15 years, that I am frantic. What is her chance of catching TB? I know it's contagious. His medication is myambutol and rifampin. Please answer me — is TB contagious for small children or not?

A. The answer is that tuberculosis is definitely contagious for small children. In fact, this is not an unusual way for young children to get the disease, and since they have not had time to build up much immunity, it can result in some severe complications in children, like TB meningitis or bone or kidney infection.

The commonest story is that nobody knows that the grandparent has tuberculosis. In your case, the likelihood is that the disease is no longer contagious because of the drugs he is taking. However, this is only true if he is not actually coughing up live tuberculosis germs. This can be tested by collecting sputum samples and analyzing them to see if the germs grow out.

If several cultures are negative, then it is safe to assume that he is no longer contagious. The child should be tested for TB regularly every six months or so.

The test is very simple in a child. It is done with a skin test, either a small injection into the skin or a scratch test to see if there has been any exposure to the germs. If it is positive, the child may need to be treated even though he or she is not showing any other sign of the disease.

This is the safest way to prevent the more serious complications mentioned before. The test takes just a few moments and is inexpensive. It is looked at after about 48 hours to see if there is any skin reaction.

THE BOOKSHELF

THE BOARDGAME BOOK: by R.C. Bell, Knapp Press, 293 pages, $35. Someone had a fine idea on this one: Put out a book that contains a lot of games that can actually be played by using the pages of the book. The book is big: about 11x13 inches. And it's jammed with more than 80 games of skill and chance.

The games include chess, backgammon, Ludo, Snakes and Ladders and some ancient games played by the pharaohs and Romans. The games can be played on foldout pages.

MAKE IT YOURS

Portrait hearts for Valentine's Day

By ELLEN APPEL

These hearts are in the right place ... as unique frames for photographs. They're made of luxurious fabrics, puffed up with pillow stuffing and ideal for hanging alone or in wall groupings.

Although Christmas barely feels over, Valentine's Day is fast approaching. It's a gift-giving time when heart shapes and portraits of loved ones seem especially appropriate.

Soft, heart-shaped frames are easy to make. All you need are scraps of lace, velvet, silk or another pretty fabric, plus stuffing, cardboard, some ordinary household supplies, and, of course, snapshots to frame.

Here are directions for the frames:

MATERIALS: Scraps of luxury fabrics, preferably lace and velvet, polyester fiberfill (pillow stuffing), heavy cardboard, pencil, straight-edged ruler, masking tape, white glue, sewing supplies, iron, scissors, X-acto or utility knife (optional).

CUTTING BOARDS: 1. Cut two 5.5x3.5-inch cardboard squares. If desired, use an X-acto or utility knife. 2. Lay the snapshot on one board. Trace around the snapshot. 3. Draw a heart shape inside the shape you've traced. Make it slightly smaller than the snapshot. 4. Cut the heart shape from the cardboard. This is the frame.

CUTTING FABRICS: 1. Press fabrics and iron. 2. Cut a 6.5x3.5-inch square from each fabric. 3. Place fabric face down on a flat surface. For lace and velvet fabrics, place right side of lace over right side of velvet. Then place both fabrics face down on a flat surface. 4. Place frame over fabric.

STUFFING THE FRAME: 1. Turn in fabric at corners. Tape corners in place (a). 2. Turn in fabric margins at sides. Tape margins in place (b). 3. Carefully cut away fabric inside heart shape. Keep margins at least three-fourths-inch wide all around. 4. Clip curves. 5. Add stuffing between cardboard and fabric. 6. Turn in margins inside the heart shape. Tape margins in place.

ASSEMBLY: 1. Glue snapshot to remaining cardboard square. 2. Glue frame to backing.

I-270 route to block 2 of 3 entrances to race track

By JUDY TAPLIN

The future of Fairmount Racetrack would be "seriously jeopardized" by closure of several roads to proposed Interstate 270 west of Collinsville, a track official testified at a public hearing by the Illinois Department of Transportation Thursday afternoon.

Roger Smith, assistant manager at Fairmount, said Ogden Corporation, owner of the track, is "vehemently opposed" to the IDOT plan. He estimated that about 2,500 parking spaces—approximately half the track's existing parking—would be taken.

He also objected to the fact that the plan would eliminate two of the three existing entrances to Fairmount. Smith warned that steps which have an adverse effect on the horse track will also hurt the city of Collinsville and the state of Illinois because of a loss of taxable revenues.

Smith told a reporter that Ogden Corporation will be filing a formal written statement with the IDOT to express its opposition.

He did not rule out the possibility of a lawsuit, but said no such action is contemplated at this time. "We'll pursue all avenues available," he said.

The public hearing, held at the Madison County Firemen's Hall on U.S. Business 40 (Collinsville Road), was to obtain public comment on the proposed closing of three roads to two alleys in the interstate's path.

Many of the 50 people in the audience were residents of the affected area—Valleyview Subdivision just east of the racetrack.

The Interstate will go through the middle of the subdivision, eliminating National Boulevard entirely and closing access to Bruce Street at U.S. 40.

A number at the hearing said they were concerned that the plan would increase their road and drainage problems.

The closings include: —Bruce at its southern end and again about 1,350 feet north of U.S. 40 at a point close to the easterly-most interstate ramp.

—National at U.S. 40 to a point about 1,580 feet north of U.S. 40.

—Nelson Street, an east-west road, from Bruce to a point 170 feet east of Simpson.

Two alleys, one about 180 feet north of U.S. 40 and west of Bruce, and another at the northern edge of the subdivision.

The plan, to the obvious dismay of the subdivision residents, will mean Bruce homeowners will have to drive north on Bruce to the portion of Nelson which will remain open, and then east to Nelson to Arnold, and back south on Arnold to reach U.S. 40.

Simpson Street residents, Church said, runoff produced by the road will be collected in ditches. A private firm is currently under contract to study a drainage plan, he said.

He noted that the city of Collinsville is also "quite concerned" about possible drainage problems.

But, Roy Meyersick, 17 Bruce, said roads in the Valleyview subdivision are in such bad shape currently that they damage cars. She blocked from the rest of the subdivision, will have a new frontage road for access to U.S. 40. Simpson is on the western edge of the subdivision and lies next to the racetrack.

Ed Crowell, owner of the Blue Top Apartments at the lower end of Bruce, complained in the hearing that the changes would ruin his business because no one would be able to find him.

"I tell 'em to turn at the big yellow tavern (the Turf Tavern at Bruce and U.S. 40). Now, how will I tell them?"

Crowell, saying that he would have to drive two miles a day extra for the rest of his life, said he wanted Bruce Street left open. "How they do it is their problem," he said.

Crowell also complained he wasn't informed of the proposed closings until the way they had to take any action. He said he was told in a meeting several months ago that his apartment wouldn't be affected by the Interstate.

Jerry Church, IDOT project engineer, said the design of the highway hasn't changed since a public hearing in 1976.

But the IDOT officials noted that the present plans are "skeletal" at this point. There may have been some small changes in right-of-way, they acknowledged.

This apparently explains why those attending a public hearing recently were told that the date for the U.S. 40 entrance. In Thursday's hearing, the IDOT officials said the entrance will be retained.

Jim Ray, speaking for the Madison County Firemen's Association, said his group is concerned that the Interstate construction might produce excess water which could affect the firemen's hall.

Church said runoff produced by the road will be collected in ditches. A private firm is currently under contract to study a drainage plan, he said.

He noted that the city of Collinsville is also "quite concerned" about possible drainage problems.

But, Roy Meyersick, 17 Bruce, said roads in the Valleyview subdivision are in such bad shape currently that they damage cars. She added that traffic would increase "enormously" on Nelson after the closures.

The people in the subdivision want a guarantee that the roads will be passable, she said. She suggested that the IDOT planners talk to the subdivision residents rather than making their decisions from behind a desk.

R. F. Latham, 25 National, asked if the road closures would come before National residents are relocated.

Church assured him that no roads would be closed until construction begins. The National residents would be moved before that, he said.

Construction north of U.S. 40 is tentatively scheduled for late 1981 and will not come before January 1981, if that soon, Church told the group.

He said Nelson is the responsibility of the township, at which one woman glared. "Boy, are we in trouble."

Church said Arnold Street is the responsibility of the city of Collinsville.

Mel Richter, Collinsville Township road commissioner, said Community Development funds will make Bruce and part of Nelson permanent streets in 1981.

Persons who didn't attend Thursday's hearing have until Jan. 20 to make written comments on the road closures. Their comments are to be sent to District 8 Engineer Dale Klor, 9300 St. Clair Ave., Fairview Heights, Ill. 62206.

Laurel Berger, district design engineer, said all statements, including those given at the hearing, will be reviewed before a decision on the road closings is made.

The decision will be submitted to Springfield and then to the Federal Highway Administration. No contracts have been put out for bids on any construction north of U.S. 40, the IDOT officials said, although work on some drains south of the highway is in progress.

Berger, noting that drainage studies haven't been completed yet, said the Interstate construction "isn't something that is going to happen tomorrow."

He said the IDOT has a commitment to have I-270 open to traffic from the Jefferson Barracks bridge to Interstate 45-70 at Collinsville by the fall or late winter of 1983.

Berger reminded the disgruntled audience that "any highway project always inconveniences someone."

Mrs. Meyersick said it wasn't inconvenience that concerned her. "I'm concerned with absolute disaster. If it floods, I lose my home, and that's it."

Mexican Honorary installs

Four new trustees were installed on the Mexican Honorary Commission's governing board at last week's meeting at the Mexican Honorary Commission Hall, 1801 Spruce St.

John Valencia, MHC president, was in charge of the meeting.

Installed as trustees for two-year terms were Robert Robles, Carol Kovach, Jim Fernandez and Otilio Valencia Jr.

The president reported Donald Valencia distributed 20 food baskets this Christmas on behalf of the club.

He noted that Valencia has headed the basket project for the last 10 years and has increased the number of gift baskets given to families each holiday season.

Mary Bridick reported the Joseph Gonzales scholarship dance will take place March 29 at the MHC club, with the Terry Dutko band playing music for dancing.

It was noted that a women's auxiliary group has been organized and its newly elected officers are:

Lisa Garcia, president; Lupe Salas, vice president; Ruby Ybarra, secretary; and Ofelia Antof, treasurer.

Ruby Ybarra, who serves as MHC membership chairman, reported a membership drive currently is underway.

Anyone interested in joining the group may call 876-9329. The commission meets on the first Sunday of each month at 2 p.m.

In the social hour, games were played and prizes were awarded.

Winners were Salvador Ybarra, Chayo Mendoza, Esther Ybarra, Robert Robles, Leah Mendoza, Joanne Ybarra, Mary Martinez, and Angela Ybarra.

Refreshments were served to more than 50 members by Ruby Ybarra and Ofelia Antof, hostesses.

Group hears professional organist

Th Metro East Organ Society met last week at the Vaughn-Coleman Organ Studios in downtown Granite City, with 20 persons in attendance.

Frank David, president, led the group in several discussions, and Feb. 9 was the date for the group's dinner at Bel Air East, where members will hear the blind organist.

Reservations will be taken and called in at the next meeting on Feb. 4.

Mrs. Dorothy Alsop and Mrs. Wilma Cooper were welcomed to the group as new members. A clarification was made on the reinstatement of former members of the club who have been inactive for at least six months.

Yearbooks for 1980 were handed out to members and copies of a popular polka were given to members as a challenge for them to practice on for the February meeting.

Various members performed on different organs and Ed Thorpe, a professional organist, also entertained the group.

Mrs. Celeste Johnson

Guests present were Thorpe, Mrs. Johnson, Mesdames Frances Goldschmidt, Thelma Schmidt, Marian Owens and Thelma Munday, and Oliver Hughes.

Members attending were to more than 50 members by Ruby Ybarra and Ofelia Antof, hostesses.

Austli and Mrs. Shipley and Neil Holtgrieve.

Shaw drops idea of assistant

Plans to employ a public information officer for the office of Southern Illinois University Chancellor Robert A. Shaw have been abandoned, Shaw said Monday.

Dr. Shaw said funds set aside for the position will be reallocated to meet other needs in the chancellor's office.

"This decision simply recognizes that the priorities which I anticipated in September, when the position was established, are now being seen in a new light," he commented.

The goals involved in the decision," Dr. Shaw said, "deal mainly with contingency funds to deal with commitments for the rest of the fiscal year, with the maintenance of a strict office economy, and with avoiding commitments that would carry over into the next fiscal year."

He said tasks originally outlined for the new position will be assigned to other office staffers and, by request, to the News Service offices at SIU at Carbondale and SIU at Edwardsville.

Some special work might be contracted outside the university on a one-time basis, he said.

Chief duties of the public information officer were to have been the preparation of brochures and pamphlets, fact books and media material describing various aspects of the entire SIU system, according to the job prospectus.

Shaw said he and Vice-Chancellor James M. Brown will be the principal sources for information about the system, and will be backed up by office staff members.

There were 77 applicants for the job and those who passed the original screening have been notified of the decision, Shaw said, adding:

"We regret having to cut short this search because the candidates we were working with were of high quality and had great promise."

School nurse day Jan. 23

Governor James R. Thompson has proclaimed Wednesday, Jan. 23, as "School Nurse Day" in Illinois.

In his proclamation, Gov. Thompson states, "Because of their excellent training and deep concern for the welfare of our children, school nurses are members of one of the most trusted groups in our nation."

"Parents are assured during school hours, their children will receive professional treatment for any injury or illness, whether a minor mishap or a major emergency."

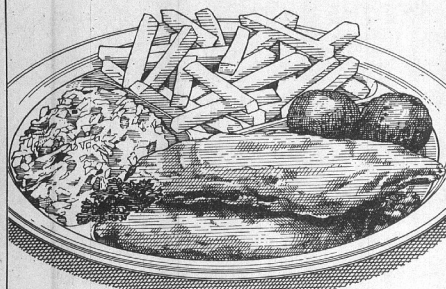

"Children who become ill or injured are confident the school nurse will offer sympathy, concern and an encouraging smile along with medical care."

By his proclamation, Gov. Thompson expresses "gratitude for their consistent demonstration of professional dedication and humanism."

Schools are being encouraged to recognize nurses who display for the service they give to school children.

'79 births and weddings decline here, deaths rise; reverse of county trends

By DONNA HARTWICK of the Press-Record

Quad-City area births during 1979 declined by 4.7 percent below those of the 1978 year, with a 1 percent reduction in fetal deaths. But deaths increased 15 percent, according to the annual vital statistics report by City Clerk Robert Stevens.

The report showed a total of 708 births in the area last year, down from 743 births during 1978, or a decrease of 35.

The total of 532 deaths showed an increase of 79 over the previous year's 479. There were seven fetal deaths during the past year, down from 12.

The statistics report includes births, deaths and fetal deaths reported within the local area and does not reflect those involving local residents occurring outside the area.

The year-end report was released after the clerk's office compiled vital statistics for the month of December listing 52 births, 50 deaths and one fetal death. These figures compared with 67 births, 57 deaths and one fetal death during December 1978.

The largest number of births for a single month was 327 in August 1979, with 300 births recorded in July 1978. The largest number of deaths occurred in November with the total of 70. Two fetal deaths were reported for July, the largest number in any month.

The number of births, fetal deaths and other deaths during the 12 months of 1979, in that order, were:

January, 50-0-45; February 66-1-37; March, 57-0-34; April, 39-0-48; May, 64-0-34; June, 61-1-33; July, 74-2-36; August, 58-1-34; September, 58-0-29; October, 59-0-42; November, 70-1-70; December, 52-1-50.

A vital statistics report in Madison County compiled through the office of Miss Evelyn Bowels, county clerk, Edwardsville, lists an increase of births by 77. There were 3,465 births in 1979 as compared to 3,388 in 1978.

The largest number of births for a single month was 327 in August 1979, with 300 births recorded in July 1978. The largest number of births for a month in the previous year.

During the past year there were 15 more males born than females. County registration of births listed 1,740 boys born in 1979 and 1,725 girls.

The number of twins born in 1979 was down by seven with a total of 23 sets in 1979 as compared to 30 sets in 1978. There were no triplets recorded for the year in Madison County.

Deaths declined in 1979 throughout the county by 34. Total for 1979 was 2,071, compared to 2,105 in 1978.

The county statistics report recorded more deaths in the month of January than in any other month of the year, for both 1979 and 1978. There were 206 deaths in January 1979 and 230 listed for January 1978.

During December 1979 there were 165 males and 121 females born for a total of 286 and two sets of twins were recorded.

Deaths in the county last month numbered 169, down from 171 in December 1978.

County-wide, marriages increased for the year and for the month of December with a total of 2,872, compared to 2,750 in 1978, an increase of 114, and 269 in December 1979, up from 241.

June is still the most popular month for weddings according to the county report, which lists 387 for 1979; top month for 1978 also was June with 332.

Ceremonies performed by ministers and priests in 1979 totalled 2,567 (2,456 in 1978), associate circuit judges 262 (272), circuit judges 30 (16), Salvation Army officers 27 (15), and service chaplains 11 (eight), for a grand total of 2,872 (2,758).

For the year of 1979 there were 638 weddings in Granite City, 98 in Madison, 15 in Venice and eight in Mitchell, a Quad-City total of 747.

During 1978, there were 649 weddings in Granite City, 72 in Madison, 22 in Venice and nine in Mitchell, a total of 752.

500 lives saved in past year by Airlift Command

"MAC is Americanism in action." That summed up the many activities of the Military Airlift Command in 1979, a spokesman said last week.

Headquartered at Scott Air Force Base in St. Clair County.

MAC has the most active peacetime mission of any Defense Department organization.

Events in 1979 kept the command busy on many fronts to help ensure peace and freedom, and to project the humanitarian spirit of America around the world.

It was a year of turbulence all over the world. There were challenges in the Middle East, starvation and war in Asia, and unrest and Communist expansion in the Caribbean and Africa.

Time after time, MAC aircrews, rescue forces, weather people, aeromedical crews and audiovisual folks dedicated their energies and talents to respond to crises and alleviate human suffering.

In every operation, exercise and emergency which arose, MAC's reserve people served alongside the command's active duty contingent as a total force.

MAC people are constantly on the job supporting United States foreign policy and domestic needs; 1979 was no exception.

The Military Airlift Command moved more than 280,227 tons of cargo and 1.4 million people through passenger and cargo terminals worldwide last year.

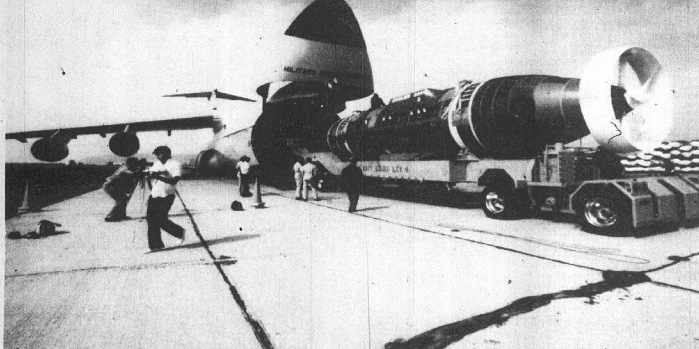

MAC aircrews and medical technicians flew more than 60,000 patients to hospital facilities for care not available at their destinations. MAC Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service people were credited with saving 500 lives, civilian and military, in the U.S. and around the world.

MAC Rescue Coordination Centers worldwide assisted in more than 1,100 saves, of which more than 500 were credited to active duty rescue units and the rest to Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard units.

Tropical storm reconnaissance look Air Weather Service forecasters and observers into every hurricane and typhoon.

Flying aboard Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service WC-130 Hercules aircraft into 33 major storms, the MAC crews obtained information which helped keep threatened areas alert for possible weather disasters.

These efforts saved countless lives and considerable property, as people due to be hit by the storms

AIRBORNE MINI-SUB. A 50-foot, 74,000-pound mini-submarine is loaded aboard a C-5 in April 1979. The sub was flown non-stop had time to protect themselves and their possessions as much as they could.

In the Caribbean, MAC weather experts tracked Hurricanes David and Frederic which pounded that area and the U.S. in the storms' wake. MAC airlifters flew more than 2,817 tons of relief supplies to Dominica Island, British West Indies and the Dominican Republic to help those made homeless by the storms.

The MAC Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service also coordinated the evacuation of more than 1,300 military aircraft from areas threatened by Hurricanes Bob, David and Frederic.

Iran dominated much of the world scene in 1979. In January, MAC aircrews helped evacuate more than 3,000 U.S. citizens from that country.

MAC aeromedical evacuation crews from Rhein-Main Air Base, Germany, responded in November when 13 hostages released earlier from the American embassy in Tehran were flown home after stopovers in Copenhagen and Paris.

MAC crews from the 89th Military Airlift Group at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., flew the recuperating Shah of Iran from New York to Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and then on to Panama.

Many other events required MAC assists in 1979 — some made headlines, while others passed without much fanfare. Yet, in each instance, it took MAC's help to get the job done, the spokesman commented.

An MAC humanitarian airlift aided thousands of Yugoslavians who needed aid after an earthquake destroyed their homes in April.

An MAC C-5 Galaxy and crew flew a pumping station to the Alaskan pipeline in July; this helped boost oil production in America's quest for energy independence.

Thirty-seven Marines severely burned in a barracks fire in Japan were the focus of an MAC rescue mission. An evacuation direct from Yokota Air Base, Japan, to Kelly Air Force Base, Texas, in October. They were then transported to the nearby Brooke Army Medical Center for further treatment.

More than 30 MAC C-141 Starlifters and C-130 Hercules missions carried one million pounds of food, Red Cross supplies and other emergency goods to Majuro Atoll in the Marshall Islands in December.

The low-flying island had been racked by fierce winds and 15- to 20-foot waves during a savage Pacific storm. The emergency humanitarian airlift helped the Atoll's population get back on its feet.

A severe earthquake rumbled through Colombia in early December, and MAC-gained Air Force Reserve crews were soon flying C-130s loaded with tents, coats and other relief supplies to the disaster scene.

The aircraft and crews were from the 68th Tactical Airlift Squadron at Kelly Air Force Base, Texas. The missions were flown at the request of the Colombian government.

from California to Scotland to be used in a rescue exercise off the Scottish coast.

MAC people also helped to ease suffering in war-torn Cambodia with airlifts of tents and blankets. Two MAC C-5 missions in December airlifted nine truck-mounted cranes for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund to a port in Singapore.

From there the cranes were to be seafloated to Phnom Penh, Cambodia, where they would help unload humanitarian relief supplies for the nation's starving people.

Another MAC C-5 carried a 74,000-pound, 50-foot-long Navy mini-submarine nonstop from California to Scotland for a rescue exercise off the Scottish coast in April. As the British peace settlement in Rhodesia drew near in early December, the United Kingdom decided to send Commonwealth ceasefire monitoring forces to the troubled country to guard against turmoil.

The United Kingdom turned to the U.S. for help in troop equipment transportation and MAC was ready to go.

A dozen of the command's C-141s and C-5s carried 95 British trucks and trailers and 12 helicopters, along with escort people, to Rhodesia — forming an "air bridge" of 34 missions in a five-day airlift.

Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service aircrews and parascramen distinguished themselves saving lives of lost or injured hunters, private pilots, campers and the like.

In 1979, a MAC rescue unit based in Korea plucked 54 Korean and Taiwanese sailors from sinking or grounded ships off the Korean coast and flew them to safety.

In December, a crew from MAC's 106th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Group at Suffolk County, N.Y., hoisted nine people to safety aboard an HH-3 Jolly Green Giant helicopter after the sailors' twin-masted wooden schooner took on water east of New Jersey.

Another MAC C-141 crew moved a seriously ill Russian seaman from Midway Island to Hawaii for treatment in October. Earlier in the year, an MAC rescue H-1 helicopter crew saved four civilians who were guests of a hotel ravaged by fire in Zaragoza, Spain.

MAC's Air Weather Service people stayed busy on the domestic front as they assisted officials monitoring the Three Mile Island nuclear accident in April. Their reports helped to inform and calm residents as they worried about possible radioactive discharges in their air.

The spokesman concludes, "MAC performed its missions well in 1979 and served United States interests every step of the way."

"MAC people are ready to fly anywhere, anytime, whenever they are asked. The command's mission epitomizes America itself — always ready to serve."

Woman historian

The first American woman historian, Mercy Otis Warren, a political satirist and playwright, in 1789 wrote her "Observations on the New Constitution." In it she deplored the absence of a bill of rights. The first 10 amendments were added in 1791.

More sheriff vehicles, maintenance cost lower

Edwardsville Intelligencer — A report detailing the operation of the Madison County sheriff's department's vehicle program has been released, and department officials are saying that it shows the much-debated system to be working successfully.

The report, a monthly compilation of statistics on the 73-vehicle fleet, was made public in a presentation to the county central services committee by Maj. Edwin Knezevich, director of administration for the department.

"I think this report shows that our program is proving effective in reducing costs," Knezevich said.

The system received substantial criticism when it was proposed early last year. Termed a "car-saturation" program at the time, it basically provided that each deputy in the department would be supplied with his own squad car.

Proponents of the new program, including both Knezevich and Sheriff Emil Toffant, claimed that by allowing each deputy his own car—which they take to their homes—less road time would be spent driving to and from headquarters.

Previously, any given squad car was driven during all the various shifts—24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The claim was that under the new program, each car would be driven one-third as much, thus eliminating costly maintenance.

To provide the extra cars, a leasing agreement was arranged with Hertz Car Leasing Co. for 30 additional autos. The cost was $117,720 for two years.

Knezevich says that the figures now released justify this past expense.

"Our gasoline consumption has actually been reduced slightly during 1979," he said, "but our miles driven on patrol have increased. This is due to several reasons—better maintenance, I think, and also accountability on the part of the deputy who is driving the car."

Knezevich said that since only one deputy drives a car during any given period of time, it becomes obvious who is responsible for any repair work that has to be done.

"When something happens to a car now," he noted, "we know who was driving it when that happened. It makes for fewer accidents."

and also a sense of pride that the car 'belongs' to someone."

Another significant aspect of the report, Knezevich said, is actual cost of maintenance on the fleet.

"Not only are we not driving the cars to death," he said, "we are also having more work done in the county garage and less done at private repair shops. Labor is definitely cheaper when it's done at the garage."

Knezevich cited statistics which showed that in 1978, $36,633 was spent on labor at private garages, while $47,589 was spent in the county garage for similar work.

In 1979, however, labor costs were down at private firms to $38,960, and in the garage to $35,165.

Knezevich said this was a direct result of expanding the fleet so that each car is driven for only one shift per day, by only one deputy.

Central services committee member Den Partney said he agreed with Knezevich's interpretation of the report.

"I know that you caught a lot of dispute when you first came up with this," he said, "but I think this report clearly shows that you have reduced costs and that the program is working."

Knezevich said seven cars in the fleet were in need of replacement, and he was directed to ask Hertz if the cars could be leased at the same price as called for in the original agreement.

If not, the seven replacements will have to be opened for bids from other companies, committee members said.

Knezevich added that the old cars could not be re-sold but would be torn apart for parts and the frames sold for scrap.

Vadalabene heads penal subcommittee

State Senator Frank M. Ozinga, R-Evergreen Park, has announced that as chairman of the Legislative Commission to Visit and Examine State Institutions, he has made two new appointments.

Named chairman of the Penal Subcommittee is Sen. Sam Vadalabene, while D-Edwardsville, who replaces the late Senator John A. Graham.

Appointed vice-chairman of the subcommittee is Sen. John E. Grothberg, R-St. Charles.

"Senators Vadalabene and Grothberg have long been vitally interested in our state penal institutions," said Ozinga, "and both men will do an excellent job of visiting our correctional facilities and making recommendations to the General Assembly."

New leaders for county housing authority

By EDGURNEY

The assistant executive director and secretary-treasurer of the Madison County Housing Authority have been promoted to the posts of executive director and assistant executive director, respectively.

Janet Haroian, 24, Pontoon Beach, hired last February as the authority's number two administrator, was named executive director late last week by the housing authority's board of commissioners.

Paula Schuler, 23, Granite City, daughter of Granite City Mayor Paul Schuler, became assistant executive director. She was hired as board secretary in November 1978, and assumed the duties of treasurer last February. Miss Schuler will retain that duty.

Some controversy has surrounded the top administrators and the board itself since September 1978, when Ed Foley of Venice left. He had been executive director for eight years, and was also secretary and treasurer.

That controversy continued Thursday night as the board approved the new appointments by 2-1 margins, with one abstention. Mary Jean Davis of East Alton joined with Paul Bargiel of Madison to approve the appointments, which will run through Nov. 30.

Reese Hoskin of Collinsville voted against them, and Thomas Jun of Alton abstained. The board chairman, James May of Edwardsville, does not vote except in case of a tie.

The post of executive director had been open since October, when the board suspended Jack Bridwell of Alton. Bridwell was hired shortly after Foley left, and had officially been the top administrator since February.

The personnel committee's decision to recommend Miss Haroian and Miss Schuler was unanimous.

Bargiel went along with the recommendation, which was made in a meeting Wednesday night, Jan. 9. The other member, Jun, said the following evening he had changed his mind.

Jun said he felt the salary to be paid Miss Haroian was too high. She is to be paid at an annual rate of $21,000, the same as was given Bridwell. Her rate of pay as assistant was $15,000 a year.

Hoskin qualified his vote by saying he didn't think her performance as assistant qualified her to be executive director.

When Miss Schuler's appointment was discussed, Jun said he thought she had planned to leave the housing authority. Miss Schuler said leaving "was an idea I had at one time."

Hoskin said he was against her appointment because he felt the board had been unfair in suspending Bridwell while not disciplining Miss Schuler.

The signing of a contract in August without board approval was one reason given for Bridwell's suspension. Miss Schuler had signed the contract, too, but she said she did so only to attest to Bridwell's signature.

Miss Schuler is to be paid at a rate of $15,000 a year as assistant executive director and $3,500 as treasurer. Her rate of pay had been $10,000 a year as secretary and $2,200 as treasurer.

The board in a unanimous vote approved advertising for a board secretary, who is to be paid $9,500 a year.

Miss Haroian graduated in 1975 from Western Illinois University with a bachelor's degree in public administration and a minor in communications. She had no housing authority experience before taking the job of assistant executive director here.

Miss Schuler has a bachelor's degree in both political science and public affairs from Western Illinois University, with a minor in finance.

She said her job for three years in college, helping to manage a dormitory, provided her with experience that is similar to public housing administration.

Miss Schuler said she considered leaving the housing authority late last year because she did not like her job as secretary, and did not see much chance for advancement. The personnel committee came to her and asked if she would take the job of assistant executive director, she said.

In other business, the board was told that employees of the housing authority want to join a union.

An assistant business representative for chauffeurs, Teamsters, Warehousemen and Helpers Local 525 asked the board for a meeting to discuss recognition of the union.

David McFarland, Local 525 assistant business representative, said nearly all of the 25 employees eligible for union membership have signed cards asking for recognition.

Approximately 20 employees attended the monthly board meeting.

Chairman May said that two weeks ago he received a letter signed by 21 employees requesting that the board establish job descriptions and a salary schedule. They asked that a representative be allowed to speak to the board at its meeting Thursday.

McFarland said that after the letter was sent, the employees consulted him and eventually asked him to represent them. An employee told a reporter that they went to McFarland when no clear leader emerged from their group.

Local 525 represents Madison County Highway Department employees, the county's canine control employees and state highway department employees, McFarland said.

A spokesman for the housing authority employees said their letter had been signed at a meeting in November. They waited until this month to submit it because the board had had other important business, he said.

Lack of a salary schedule is a sore point, he said. Employees last year were given a seven percent pay raise.

May told a reporter that the housing board went along with the president's wage guidelines last year when it proposed a seven percent raise.

That raise was made part of the authority's 1979 budget, which was submitted last January to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

HUD must approve the budget, since it partially subsidizes the authority's operation.

May noted that the authority this year has proposed a 10 percent pay raise for employees—above the president's guidelines.

That raise was part of the 1980 budget approved by the board Thursday night. It now goes to HUD.

Miss Schuler strongly urged the board to consider a new retirement plan.

The retirement plan has a low annual yield, and employees are required to pay into it at a rate of 5½ percent of their wages, the employees said.

JANET HAROIAN
Housing chief

An employee said there are no fixed policies "on anything."

He added that he wants to find out if housing authority employees' pay here is competitive with that of housing authority employees in nearby areas. McFarland is checking into that, he added.

Varied mail services here

(Granite City Post office)

When you use the mail you like to feel you're getting the speed of delivery you want, but haven't paid for more service than you need.

The best way to get first-class service is to understand how all four classes of mail should be used.

First-Class Mail should be familiar to everyone. If you have written letters, sent postal cards to friends while on vacation or paid bills by mail, you have an idea of what first-class mail is all about.

But first-class mail can be more than something in an envelope. Packages weighing over 12 ounces and up to 70 pounds can be sent priority mail—and get first-class mail service—to ensure speedy delivery.

A priority mail package will be delivered to distant cities within two days. Fourth-class mail is delivered in two days locally, with an additional day added for each "zone" the parcel must travel from its point of origin.

A friend or relative on military duty would appreciate your knowing about second-class mail. While it is used primarily by newspaper and magazine publishers, you also could send local newspapers and magazines to a soldier away from home by second-class mail and save yourself some money.

Another class of mail you should know about is third-class mail. Large mailings of printed material are mailed at the bulk third-class rate.

This is how department stores send catalogs, advertising circulars and merchandise under one pound to your home.

Individuals can also mail similar items at the single piece third-class rate.

At the fourth-class rate, merchandise, printed matter and all material over one pound not included in the first three mailing classes are mailed.

It's less expensive than the other classes, but does not get priority handling.

If, however, there's no rush, it may be the ideal way to mail larger, heavier items. For example, college students can send home books or heavy stereo equipment at the end of the semester.

Consider spending a little extra and insuring items of high value.

Here's another example of how you could be buying more service than you really need. Suppose you had to mail a resume for a new job with an application deadline or a bid for a new business contract.

You want to be sure that it reaches the addressee. The letter is very valuable to you, but would be worthless to anyone else. What's the best way to send it?

Any one of three services would accomplish the mission: registered mail, certified mail or a certificate of mailing.

The best way would be certified mail because it provides a receipt and record of delivery at the addressee's post office. A return receipt to the sender can be purchased, and it would not waste money on more service than you need.

Registered mail would also serve the purpose, but it would cost more money.

The other choice, a certificate of mailing, is cheaper than certified mail but not ideal because no record is maintained at the destination post office. You would have proof that your correspondence was mailed, but not that it was received, which is the objective.

You can see that the informed customer can save money on postal services. You don't have to know all the rules and regulations of the Postal Service has. Your primary guide should be your neighborhood postal clerk.

In addition to his or her knowledge and experience, a leaflet entitled "Domestic Postage Rates, Fees and Information" is available free at the post office.

Two men and one woman arrested in a drug sweep in September, after an undercover drug investigation, have been released after pleading guilty to drug charges in Madison County Circuit Court. Another man arrested at the same time has been ordered to serve 30 days in the Madison County Jail.

Circuit Judge Victor J. Mosele ordered two years of probation for Terry Lynn George, 24, of the 2900 block of Myrtle Avenue, who also uses the name Eagle Eye Thundercloud, authorities said. George pleaded guilty to delivering drugs to agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois (MEGS).

June 5 and June 13, 1979. A third charge alleging he delivered drugs to agents June 6 was dismissed on the motion of the state.

Allen Biggs, 20, of the 5100 block of Lakeview Drive, Pontoon Beach, was fined $270 and ordered to make $60 in restitution after appearing before Associate Judge John W. Day on a cannabis delivery charge. Biggs also was ordered to serve one year of probation while obeying the terms of the state's 710 drug program. It is alleged he delivered marijuana to agents Feb. 14, 1979.

Debbie Patterson, 23, of the 3500 block of Kirkpatrick Homes, has been ordered to serve six months of probation and to pay a $100 fine after pleading guilty to delivering drugs to agents May 24, 1979. Judge Mosele pronounced sentence.

Judge Mosele also accepted guilty pleas from Victor Cook, 18, of the 200 block of Voight Place, Mitchell, on three counts of delivery of a controlled substance and ordered him to serve 30 months of probation and 30 days in the county jail. He was charged with delivering drugs to agents April 6 and 10 and May 3, 1979.

"Snow-Problem"

How do you keep a large regional shopping center free and clear of snow during a typical midwestern winter? You "plan, plan, train, and plan some more" says Mall Manager Yvonne Glovers. The snows of this winter were being planned for as early as July of 1979!

Alton Square has a full crew of workers, snow plows, salt spreaders, tractors and shovels all prepared for a winter snow. During snow season there are students on call to keep up with side-walk snow removal, also. According to Ms. Glovers, a snow removal plan goes into effect before there is one-inch of snow on the parking lot. Each member of the crew is assigned a specific area of the lot. Since there is a snow drifting problem, you will also note a method of snow removal called wind-rowing is practiced. Wind-rowing deters excessive drifting.

Snow isn't any fun while driving, but at Alton Square it truly is "snow-problem."

Plantings do more than beautify Alton Square

Alton Square shoppers are treated to a double level of sub-tropical foliage throughout the year. Shoppers may stroll cory-tiled Alton Square and enjoy the greenery even during the worst part of winter.

Alton Square uses nature's plants and natural sky-lighting to soothe their customers in this hurry-up world. Where else can you find all your fashion needs and enjoy a beautiful stroll among greenery?

For the plant buffs, here is a list of the plants in abundance at Alton Square. You'll find two dramatic Alexander Palms gracing Center Court. There is a multitude of Ficus Trees throughout the mall. Other plants you may look for are: Ficus Nitida, Ficus Benjaminia, Ficus Benjaminia/"exotica," Schefflera, Kentia Palms, Neantha Bella Palms, Draceana Marginata, Draceana Warnickii, Spathiphyllum, Ficus Lyrata, Norfolk Island Pines, Dieffenbachia, Peperomia, Pittosporium, and as ground covers: Pothos, Cissus Rombifolia, and Peperomias.

The graceful foliage at Alton Square does more than provide a pleasant view. Plants are also nature's air filtration center. They filter and improve the atmosphere by mixing clean with impure air, by removing the carbon dioxide and giving off pure oxygen and adding humidity to the atmosphere.

All Alton Square foliage is carefully tended by Mrs. Ethel Jones, our "Plant Lady." Thank you Ethel!

January is warm and fun at Alton Square

We're too new to have established traditions... yet, but we're working on them! Alton Square is planning a busy and entertaining month with the interests of the community in-mind.

The merchants are hosting a wide selection of Community events and special programs all for you. Hopefully, you didn't miss "Your 1980 New Year's Resolution." You were invited to post your New Year 1980 Resolutions at Alton Square in the Center Court. Some of the resolutions were serious, some touching and some very humorous. Watch in February for the "Be An Alton Square Sweetheart" bulletin board.

Alton Square celebrated the fine artists from Lewis and Clark Community College January 8 and 9.

Of course, you're reading our "Baby, It's Warm Inside" January newspaper supplement so you know the selection of merchandise is great, varied and moderately priced at Alton Square. Use this as your guide to discovering the 77 merchants, J. C. Penney and Famous-Barr all for you at Alton Square.

Also, in January, Alton Square is hosting a series of Karate demonstrations. These demonstrations will be daily from Thursday, January 17 through Saturday, January 19 at 7:00 p.m. in the Famous-Barr court area on the lower level. The Karate demonstrations will be by the YMCA Karate Class. They will demonstrate breaking boards, and patio blocks. This is a very active and informative display, so bring the entire family.

There's nothing finer than young people learning the business of our country. Alton Square will be hosting J. A. Fair Days on Saturday, January 26 and Sunday, January 27. Over 35 locally sponsored J. A. groups will be displaying and selling their merchandise. The booths and companies will be judged by the store managers of Alton Square on many qualities including professionalism, quality of workmanship and originality of items created and marketed.

Well, that's about it for January! Of course, there is always something new and interesting popping-up here at Alton Square, so keep an eye on your very own regional shopping center. We wish you a good 1980 and hope the snows stay away!

211 ALTON SQUARE UPPER LEVEL 465-4770

It's comfortable at Alton Square

January is a cold month in Alton and the surrounding area. While Alton Square carefully obeys the President's heating (and air conditioning) ruling, we do provide for you a comfortable and enjoyable respite from the view of snow, snow, snow and more ice. There are 78 specialty shops in Alton Square, including Famous-Barr and a brand new J. C. Penney providing you with a complete selection of shopping needs. — Alton Square is your fashion place to shop for home and clothing needs. Alton Square is a comfortable, friendly place to shop, and what's more, Alton Square is in your own back yard! Remember, we're all for you . . . ALTON SQUARE!
